Tuesday evening

My darling sweetheart.

Just think

dear, that this is the last letter I will write to you. From now on we will be to-gether always. You will leave the night you get this, but I wanted to write anyway.

Ed and mother went to the opera. It is opening night, and there is not a seat to be had for any amount of money. The manager told Kaiser that he was offered a hundred dollars for a seat if he could get it, and he couldn't get one seat. Walter and Cole are sitting in the box with the composer of the opera.

Those were the only two seats. It is a new opera "Le Navre", and the composer himself is to be there. I wonder how they will enjoy sitting with such a celebrity.

Let me know what train you will take.

There is so much I have to tell you dear, but I'll wait until I see you

Good-bye darling boy. A bunch of hugs and kisses and
