President Kaufmann Reviews Progress of the "Y" at Annual Meeting Last Monday Night

Reporting on a year of constructive activity President Edgar J. Kaufmann gave a comprehensive review of the progress of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association at the Annual Meeting of the organization last Monday night in the Morris Kaufmann Auditorium of the "Y" building on Bellefield Avenue. Mr. Kaufmann pointed to the constructive work of the organization in a world in which destruction is riding rampant and showed how the "Y" is contributing its share toward sustaining the morale of young people and adults at a time when the citadels of civilization are crumbling about us.

Executive Director Herman Passamaneck in his message indicated the long road there still remains for the "Y" to travel in order to fulfill its complete responsibility as a Jewish Community Center.

Elmer A. Hamburg reported on a meeting in Washington, D. C., called for the purpose of completing the United Service Organization which has been created to provide recreational and morale building activities for soldiers and sailors near the various army camps. He also announced the formation of home defense forces and urged maximum participation in both movements.
