The Doors Must Remain Open

unable to give facts or statistical evidence of Arab displacement. They did make bombastic speeches full of fire and denunciation. But when the members of the Commission demanded the facts, none were forthcoming. No one knows better than the Arab himself that the claim of Arab exploitation is unadulterated myth. If fact, so many thousands of Arabs have entered the country since the Balfour Declaration was issued that the neighboring Arab countries have openly admitted that the Jewish upbuilding of Palestine has been a great boon for the entire Near East.

The mass of the Arab population has been greatly uplifted by Jewish achievement, and the basis of a lasting Arab-Jewish understanding exists in the social and economic betterment of the Arabs.

During the past four years Palestine has been the major center of immigration for Jews from Germany, Poland and other lands. A total of 165,000 Jews have entered the country during that period. This unprecedented influx has not exhausted the absorptive capacity of the country. On the contrary, the increased population, with the benefit of expert agricultural and scientific training, has greatly widened the possibilities for the development of the land, with the result that today Palestine is in a position to admit many thousands more.

Within Palestine 410,000 Jews from all parts of the world have built a new land out of the dry dust and sand of centuries of neglect. They have erected a solid economic structure, tested by the most extreme hardship and strife and found sturdy and durable under the severest stress. But that community is prepared to receive many others who look to Palestine for permanent home and a refuge from persecution.

For this reason the doors of Palestine must be kept open without any circumscription. The only yardstick that the Jewish accept as a measure of Jewish immigration is and must remain the economic absorptive capacity of the land as defined by the Churchill White Paper. Anything less would not only be a denial of Jewish rights, but a betrayal of those countless unfortunates in Central and Eastern Europe for whom Palestine represents the only salvation from bitter oppression.

The present crisis requires the united action of the Jews of the United States, not only because they must assume the major part of the burden of solving the plight of European Jewry, but because they are the largest Jewish community in the world and one of the few that is still able to raise its voice in the halls of nations in behalf of the protection of Jewish rights.
