Pittsburgh: Rodef Shalom Congregation, 1985.

Call number: BM197 C454 1985

The Pittsburgh Platform was a document presented at a rabbinical conference at Rodef Shalom Congregation in 1885. It laid out a framework for Reform Judaism's position on both theological and practical matters. At the time, there were many critics of these statements, and Dr. Jacob's symposium one hundred years later presents arguments both in favor or and against the principles espoused in the platform.
