

On The Teen Scene

By AVA LEVITE

SINCE time began people have been dissatisfied with the status quo. Some situations bother a person to such a large extent that he devotes all of his energy into developing a solution. This enterprising spirit has become a vital force in aiding the growth of this country.

But the inventors and innovators are not only adults. Members of today's younger generation are out stirring up action for causes in which they believe.

Miss Levite

The problem of Soviet Jewry has become more publicized and increasingly tragic. Depriving 3 million Jews of preserving their heritage is a great calamity.

In an attempt to work on the problem, the Pittsburgh Youth Council for Soviet Jewry was recently formed. It is being supported by the Jewish Community Relations Council.

The Council is being comprised of the Jewish youth groups in the area with one representative from each participating organization. The chief aim is to educate youth about the situation and act as a stimulant for action.

Future activities include a march scheduled for March 3 from the Rodef Shalom Congregation to the YM & WHA. Members of youth groups from all religions are being invited to participate.

For further information, phone Gary Cohen, chairman, at 521-1097 or the JCRC at 621-3337.

★ ★ ★ ★

Members of Young Judaea have been busy lately organizing new chapters and getting them underway. A new junior Judaea boys' club has been started in Squirrel Hill under the leadership of Sheldon Clark. An intermediate girls' club has been started, also in Squirrel Hill, with Ruth Levine as advisor.

New junior and senior chapters are opening in Eastmont. The junior club is under the direction of Zeena Schwartz. Mem-

*Planning a blast?
Having a ball?
Give Ava a call
Phone 361-2764*

bers of the senior chapter include Sherri Smiley, Zeena Schwartz, Linda Dinowitz, and Cindy Markowitz.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

To celebrate its anniversary, Avodah BBG is holding a dinner-dance at The Playhouse. The affair is semi-formal and is the chapter's biggest social event of the year. Chairmen for the evening are Karen Lane and Eva Turbine.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

BBYO Winter Tourney '68 will be held Jan. 26-30. One of the features is an open dance at the Y on Saturday night, Jan. 27. The Lost Souls will provide the music, and everybody is cordially invited.

Vacation Magic
WHERE PARENTS & CHILDREN HAVE SEPARATE VACATIONS TOGETHER!
 Oceanfront
 25th to 26th Sts.
 Miami Beach, Fla.
Algiers
 PITTS:
 521-7301

SCHECHTER & HIRSCH'S Gar
 is a Great K
 -Y