On The Teen Scene

By AVA LEVITE

PROTEST marches are becoming an increasingly familiar sight on the American scene. It provides an effective method for airing grievances and bringing to the attention of the public conditions that demand change. The Pittsburgh Youth Council for Soviet Jewry is planning a march protesting the treatment of Jews in Russia. The march is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, March 3.

The marchers will meet at 2 p.m. at the Beth Shalom Synagogue. From there, they will proceed to the Rodef Shalom Congregation where Dr. Allen Pollack, professor of Russian History at the University of Pittsburgh will speak. Dr. Pollack has visited the Soviet Union and will discuss the Jewish situation there.
