Mr. Mendell Bloom
350 Independence Court
Sharon, Pennsylvania

Dear Mr. Bloom,

While Rabbi Goldstein is more liberal than Rabbi Dachowitz and possesses more native American qualities, I feel it is unwise to further suggest his candidacy or that of any Yeshiva graduate for the spiritual leadership of your community.

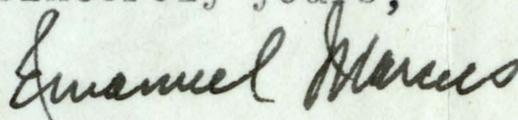

The Rabbis of the Yeshiva are personally sincere in their religious life and convictions. They will not force their beliefs upon their congregants but they do intend to teach them by study and example the time-honored Torah way of Jewish life.

This way of life has been revealed by G-d on Mt. Sinai. It is divine and immutable. It calls for the love of Mankind but insists upon the genuine understanding of the oneness and uniqueness of a Heavenly Father.

This precludes the changing of pulpits and other practices your community established for its convenience.

When your membership will feel an inner need for Torah true leadership, the Yeshiva will gladly respond to your call.

Sincerely yours,

Rabbi Emanuel Marcus
Director
