Foreword

Judaism speaks a great deal about family relations. The family life of the Jews has always been celebrated in the world for three things: its solidarity, its warm emotional attachments, and for the high level of morality. In the past, members of Jewish families were able to maintain greater family solidarity than many other groups. Unfortunately, for many the old pattern of Jewish family relations has been deteriorating. The same can be said of family relations in other groups of people. The breakdown of family relations has been a detriment to society. It has been and will continue to be creating havoc in this world. One cause of this breakdown can be attributed to our advances in technology and the growth of the suburbs.

The modern age of long distance travel enables us to separate easily from one's family's roots. I for one am a perfect example. Having grown up with very strong family ties in Brooklyn, New York, I thought it would be exciting when I graduated college to "move out" in order to see other parts of this great big country. I wanted to experience what the rest of the world had to offer. It was my belief that occasional visits home and the eventual return to my roots would be easy. It was not and it did not occur.

If we are to remain strong as a people and as a nation, it is important that we restore that worthy tradition of Jewish family relations. It is for this reason that I have put together this family history and family tree with the hope that as the tree produces new branches, each limb will flourish and blossom into many generations.

Putting the details of my family tree on paper started in the early 1960's during one of my many visits with my grandfather, Nathan Glickstein and my grandmother Riva. The family tree and its associated database are filled with many details such as names, addresses, birth dates, marriage dates, occupations, significant events and much more. While some persons may call this trivia, it was the effort to acquire this information that provided me the opportunity to make contact with dozens and dozens of families. Some of these were personal contacts where our conversations were recorded on audiotape. Others were through telephone communication. Many more were made with old-fashioned letter writing and finally via e-mail. This effort opened the door to visits with family members with whom I hadn't spoken in over forty years. In addition I met family members I didn't know existed. I shall always cherish these contacts and look forward to many more in my future years.

The book has been divided into two parts. Part I provides historical information of my grandparents' backgrounds as well as a chronology of my personal life. Part II is a compendium of detailed information on family members and a genealogy dating from my forefathers, as far back as the 1500's.

Acknowledgement

I would like to acknowledge the many individuals who have made significant contributions to this collection of family names and relations. Without their help this work could never have been done. These members are as follows:

Grandparents Pop and Riva Glickstein for providing the only known details of the initial Barshefsky and Parness family as well as for providing the impetus to my initial effort for this work,

Aunt Yetta Sachs Lenchitz for taking the time to provide me with the first outline for the Solomon Lenchitz family, and to her daughter,

Cousin Rochelle Lenchitz Hartstein for all the information on the Lenchitz tree dating back to Shlomo Ephraim Lenchitz,

Cousin Norma Ludwig for providing details of the descendants from my great-aunt Basha Lenchitz,

Cousin Alvin Barshefsky whose own genealogy search has provided detailed information on the descendants of my grandfather Nathan's brother, Meyer Barshefsky along with other members of the Barshefsky family, Cousin Sondra Werner Kaufman who only a few years ago discovered her roots as a member of the Barshefsky/Glickstein clan and provided considerable information on the descendants of my grandfather Nathan's brother Simcha Laib Glickstein as well as stories and pictures of my grandfather Nathan.

My daughter Karen for suggesting the title for this book, Steve, Barbara and Cathy for their input, to my wife Joan for just listening to my endless requests for her opinion as well as for her help in editing and rewriting some of the text,

My friend Bea Kuchta for all her time and effort in editing this book, and

All my dear family members who took the time to fill out the forms which requested detailed information on family members and returned the data to me.

Thank you all!

Family History and Genealogy

Introduction - How this family history and genealogy documentation started

As I grew up, I spent most of my life living in the same 3-bedroom home as my mother's family, which included my mother's parents, her three brothers and her three sisters. If you were wondering how so many people could be accommodated in just three bedrooms, it was simple. My sister Cynthia, a toddler slept with my parents in one room. My aunts Caroline and Florence slept in another room. My uncle Charlie slept in the third room on one twin bed while my grandmother and grandfather slept in the other twin bed. I slept in the same room as my grandparents on a cot that was folded up each morning and unfolded in the evening. It was easy. No problem!

Within the region of a five-minute walk I could visit almost all of my father's family, which included his parents and four brothers. As the brothers and sisters married they all found their first home within walking distance of other members of the Glickstein/Lenchitz clan. In less than a half mile radius one could probably walk to the home of any one of over 30 Glickstein and Lenchitz family members. I took advantage of this by visiting my aunts and uncles on a regular basis from my very early years through my teens. My other grandparents, Pop and Riva lived just down the street from my home. Every day I delivered leftover meat bones for their dog, Brownie. My cousin Howie Lenchitz and his family lived in the same house as my grandfather. He was a year younger than I, and his home was literally my second home. I spent many hours there.

I graduated from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute with a degree in Electrical Engineering in 1955 and took a job with the General Electric Co. In that fall I found myself on the way to Milwaukee, WI via Chicago, IL. I remembered that several years earlier my grandfather Nathan had visited his brother Meyer in Chicago. With an interest in family ingrained in me from early childhood, it was natural for me to try to visit this great-uncle. There I was in the middle of this thriving metropolis sitting in a narrow phone booth scanning through the Chicago phone directories for G-l-i-c-k-s-t-e-i-n. I found none. I looked again. There was no listing for Glickstein. I made the long distant phone call to my grandparents in Brooklyn. With my broken Yiddish and Pop not understanding what I was asking for, it was hopeless. Finally, Riva my grandfather's second wife and sister of my maternal grandmother got on the phone. I explained the problem. Her answer astonished me. "Glickstein! Why are you looking for Glickstein? Pop's last name is not Glickstein, it is Barshefsky!" That was a surprise! I searched the phone book again, this time for B-a-r-s-h-e-f-s-k-y. There it was, Gustave Barshefsky. He was the son of Pop's brother Meyer. I later found out that Meyer passed away a couple of years earlier. Pop was never told until many years later. I was invited to have a Shabbat dinner with the family. My recollection of that evening is very hazy. The revelation that Pop's real name was Barshefsky prompted me to begin asking questions about Pop's family history.

I never gave any thought to my relationship to Riva. She was Pop's second wife as well as my grandmother Bertha's sister. That made her my great-aunt as well as my grandmother. It was in their home at 235 Remsen Avenue, Brooklyn, New York that I asked Pop to provide me with the details of his family. I wrote notes on a small piece of scrap paper. Searching for additional paper, I found a blank New York telephone address book. It is on these pieces of paper that I started recording the intricate details of the Glickstein/Barshefsky family tree. In addition, Riva provided me with her family history and some details of her early years in Podwoloczyska, Austria. Close family ties, the realization that my grandfather's name was not Glickstein but Barshefsky, and the discussions with Pop in the early 1960's provided the impetus to begin documenting my personal history and that of my family members.

Thirty to forty years later I reinforced and confirmed much of what was told to me by Pop about his siblings, when I discovered and spoke to Alan Barshefsky, a grandson of Pop's brother Meyer Barshefsky and to Sondra Kaufman, a descendant of one of Pop's other brothers, Simcha Glickstein. Sondra only knew of her uncle Simcha, as Simcha Glickstein. By searching the Internet in the year 2000, she discovered that she too was connected to the Barshefsky/Glickstein clan.

Putting the genealogy pieces together has been a wonderful adventure. It has provided me the opportunity to meet many long lost relatives that I would never have known about and to hear tales from many other family members that comprise the Glickstein/Barshefsky/Lenchitz family. It has truly been a road well traveled.

The Bible speaks of recording the names of our family members. In Numbers 1, 2 it is written, "On the first day of the second month, in the second year following the exodus from the land of Egypt, the Lord spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the Tent of Meeting (Tabernacle) saying, take a census of the whole Israelite community by the clans of its ancestral houses, listing the names, every male, head by head. You and Aaron shall record them by their group, from the age of twenty years up, all those in Israel who are able to bear arms." So began our family genealogy and I am happy and privileged to continue this task.

The following chapters provide a few details about my grandparents, where they came from, when and how they got to the United States of America and some information on their family background. Finally, I have tried to provide a little information about myself, where I grew up and how I got to where I am today.

Part I - Family and Personal History

My grandfather, Nathan Glickstein was from Rajgrad, Lunza, Gaberna, Poland

During that long and very interesting visit with my grandfather Nathan and grandmother Riva¹ sometime in the 1960's I recorded notes of our conversation on scrap paper. These notes have been preserved and in addition have been scanned into computer files.² In these notes, Pop indicated that he was born in Rygrad, Poland. In 1965 I asked Encyclopedia Britannica to research Rygrad. They replied on April 15, 1965 with the following information:

"Unfortunately, we have not found a listing of the town Rygrad. The nearest approximation that we find is the town of Rajgrad. Since this is possibly the same location I am giving you the relevant data below.

*Rajgrad, Pol, Rajgrad, Rus. Raigrod or Raygrad, town (popl 1683), Bialystok prov. N.E. Poland, on S.E. shore of irregularly shaped Rajgrad L. (6 mi. long N-S) 14 mi. S. W> of Augustow; cement manufacturing, flour milling, dairying"*³

Pop left Rajgrad, Poland at age 18 to escape going into the Russian/Polish army. At that period of time one was obligated to spend 4 years in the army once you reached the age of 21. Since no one had a birth certificate they took you when you looked the age. After leaving Poland, Pop arrived in Liverpool, England and lived there one year working as a tailor. He indicated that he left England right after Passover. Riva told me that Pop's cousin wanted to marry him while he lived in England but Pop didn't want to. It was the only time I ever saw Pop blush. Apparently, his cousin had money and she may have helped pay for his transportation to come to America.⁴

Pop indicated that his mother was very learned in Judaism. I recall him saying that she was often asked to act as a Judge in her town. He had pictures of his mother and father that were stashed in an upstairs bedroom closet. He brought them down and was extremely proud of these very large 20x30 inch photographs. I told him that they should be displayed in the living room but Riva wasn't too happy about that idea. The pictures were later hung in an upstairs bedroom. His brother Simcha Glickstein spent 5 years in the Polish army before he married and then came to America.⁵

My notes also indicate that Pop had a stepfather and Simcha Glickstein was his stepbrother. When I spoke with my aunt Florence Lenchitz Glick in 2001 she said that she knew Simcha.

¹ I grew up knowing Riva Hofrichter as being the wife of Nathan Glickstein. She was my grandmother! I never associated her as being my great aunt, sister of my grandmother Bertha Lenchitz.

³ This information was apparently taken from: Seltzer, L., Ed. The Columbia Lippencott Gazetteer of the World. New York: Columbia University Press, 1962. p. 1551.

⁵ The rest of my notes list his brothers and sisters names but with the following notation:

Mother – Isaac, Nathan, Shepsal, Meyer, Charlie (I think this means, his brothers from his mother's side)

Father – Simcha (oldest), Getzel, Yale (I think this means, his brothers from his father's side)

Mother – Rashha (I think this means, his sister from his mother's side)

Stepsister Raisil, Hinda (I think this means, his sister from his father's side)

“He was very old. Never saw anyone that old, full of mischief and smiles. Uncle Nathan’s big brother was very different from Uncle Nathan.”

My 1960’s notes also indicate that Pop lived with Simcha at 214 Madison Street. When I spoke with Sondra Kaufman, a descendant from the Simcha Glickstein family, she said she never heard the name Barshefsky. I now suspect that Pop took on his brother Simcha’s last name, Glickstein when he arrived in NY in 1902.⁶

⁶My 1960’s notes also indicate to whom Nathan’s brothers were married too and lists some of their children’s names. Nathan married Celia Blumenstein in 1907. My father, Moses Glickstein was born in 1908. It is from this 1960’s source that the Glickstein/Barshefsky tree first got started.

My grandfather and grandmother, Pop (Nathan Barshefsky) and Riva Glickstein

My great grandparents, Rachel Leah and Sender Barshefsky

II. My grandmother, Brona Hofrichter Lenchitz was from Podwoloczyska, Austria

Rachel Parness was Riva's mother and Rueben Hofrichter was her father. The 1960 notes also indicate that her grandmother Esther Parness was born in Skalat, Austria. Skalat was a "one-hour ride by horse from Podwoloczyska." Shlomo Parness (Riva and Brona's uncle) also lived in Skalat. (Perhaps that is who I was named after. I was always called Shlome in my early years.) Riva was born in Podwoloczyska and in 1904 at age 10 she was in 4th grade. She married her sister Brona's brother-in-law, Mayer Lenchitz in 1914. Documentation from the ship indicates that she and Mayer traveled from Liverpool, England to America aboard the same ship as her sister Brona and her family. They arrived October 23, 1910.

Riva first came to England with her sister Brona (my maternal grandmother) in 1908. They stayed two years. Brona was married for 9-months and her husband Hershel was already in England. Their father was afraid to let Brona go by herself. I assume that is why Riva came along. Their father died one week after they left for England. Their brothers Abe and Sol Hofrichter were already in New York. The ships Passenger Records and Ship Manifest shown in Appendix A indicates that Abe Hofrichter arrived in New York in January, 1900. The Manifest indicates that he was going to live with someone from the Plasker family. The Plasker family descended from Abe and Esther Parness. After their father died, Abe sent for their mother Rachel. Rachel then told Riva to come to America. Not wanting to leave without Brona, they all (Riva, Brona and her family) left for America.⁷ After two weeks in the USA, Riva was told that her father died.

The original 1910 Ship Manifest shown in Appendix A lists Riva as Regina Aufrichter, age 17. The ship's Passenger Records, also shown in Appendix A lists her as Regina Lenchitz. It is a bit confusing, but understandable, Riva traveled with the Lenchitz family. She married Meyer Lenchitz on February 14, 1914. My notes provide information on other members of the family. Abraham Parness had a son Izzy. He had a clubfoot and wanted to marry Riva, but she didn't want to marry a cripple. He later married a wealthy hunchback. They had two sons. Izzy and his wife died of the flu, October 18, 1918. Riva's husband Meyer also died in September 1918 leaving her with two very young sons, Shirky (1-month old) and Ruby (age 2). On June 6, 1920, Riva, my great-aunt then married Pop (Nathan Glickstein), my grandfather from my father's side.

While growing up as a youngster, I heard of the Podwoloczyska Society but never appreciated what I was hearing. During my talk with Pop and Riva, I learned that Riva and her sister Bertha Hofrichter Lenchitz came from the town of Podwoloczyska. All I ever knew was that the Podwoloczyska Society was a burial society that had purchased burial plots for its members. That is true. These burial plots are part of a section of the Beth David Cemetery located in Elmont, New York⁸. My grandparents as well as many of my relatives have been buried in such plots. I recently acquired a copy of the constitution of the Podwoloczyska Society and discovered that it was more than just a burial society. It was a fraternal organization. For example, written into the constitution was the requirement that one of the members of the Board of Directors make a weekly visit to members of the Society who were ill. Money was given by the Society to family members to help pay for doctor visits as well as to help the unemployed and needy.

⁸ Details about the Cemetery and pictures of Family Tombstones will be published in a separate book.

Knowing little about the land of Podwoloczyska, I requested in 1965 the Encyclopedia Britannica to research this town. (Remember, the Internet was not around in 1965.) They replied on April 15, 1965 with the following information:

*"Podvolochisk, Polish Podwoloczyska, town (1931 population 3895), E. Ternopol Oblast, Ukraine Ukrainian SSR, on Abruch River, opposite Volochisk and 25 miles east of Ternopol; grain-trading center; flour milling, distilling, manufacture of bricks and soap. Poland-USSR frontier customs station (1921-1939)."*⁹

In January 2000, I met Izak Baum. Both my father and Izak were active members of the Podwoloczyska Society. In a book written to his grandchildren, Izak wrote the following:

"I was born in a little town called Podwoloczyska. You see, one hundred years ago there was a big country in Europe called the Austrian-Hungarian Empire. The Kaiser was Franz Josef II, and the capital was Vienna. One day he made an agreement with the Czar of Russia, to build a railroad from Vienna to Moscow. The Austrians had to build to the border on their side, and the Russians to the border on their side. The border was a small river called Zbrucz. They built bridges over the river and so connected the two countries. On the Russian side was the small town of Woloczyska. When they finished building the railroad, the Austrians built on their side a grandiose railroad station and a duty house and named it Podwoloczyska, which means, under Woloczyska.

Russia was very rich. They started to export cattle, corn, and hundreds of kinds of agricultural products to Austria and Germany. They imported machinery and things of luxury from the West. All these things had to be unloaded from the Austrian cars to the Russian cars. The Russian railroad tracks were wider than the Austrian tracks by a foot. They did this on purpose so that in a time of war the enemy would not be able to invade them easily. The railroad brought great prosperity to the town. Thousands of workers found work. Jewish people from Vienna and other places built beautiful homes and businesses around the station. They built synagogues, schools, theaters, and libraries. Tourism was a big thing. Tens of thousands of rich people from Russia spent the winter months on the beaches of Italy and France."

To help understand more about this town we have the following, which was taken from a printout from The Nahum Goldman, Museum of the Jewish Diaspora. It also could have been extracted from the Encyclopedia Judaica, 16 volumes, "Everything you wish to know about Judaism" Keter Publishing House, Jerusalem. I believe my father had given it to me. He may have obtained it from one of the museums in Israel during his visit in the 1980's. It also appeared in an Internet file and is reproduced in the following paragraph. It indicates that today, Podwoloczyska is part of the new Ukrainian state.

Citing Encyclopedia Judaica, Vol. 13

"Podvolochisk (Pol. Podwoloczyska) town in Tarnopol Oblast, Ukrainian S.S.R. Before World War II Podvolochisk was within the Tarnopol district in Poland, and was a grain and milling center. Between the two world wars the town included a customs station between Poland and the Soviet Union. In 1865 there were 2,000 inhabitants in the town, the majority of who were Jews: in 1921 the Jews numbered 2,275 (62% of the total population). After World War I, in independent Poland, the economic situation of the Jews became precarious because the town was isolated from its previous markets; trade was reduced and the Jews could not earn their livelihood. The organization of Jewish merchants attempted to elevate the situation, but could not find a solution of the hostile attitude of the Polish authorities that sought to strengthen the Polish element of this border town. The situation became so bad, by 1925; the tradesmen required communal assistance. Jewish life was vibrant in Podvolochisk and community elections were held in 1924 and 1928. Jews also participated in the municipal elections in 1933. Among the rabbis of the community were members of the Babad family, including Joshua Hershel and his son Judah Leibush who was rabbi on the eve of the Holocaust. [Sh. L.K.]”

Holocaust Period

With the outbreak of the German-Soviet war, Podwolocyzska was captured by the Germans (July 1941) and about 70 Jews were immediately killed. Economic restrictions were decreed, and seizure of Jews for forced labor camps began. The Ukrainian population also attacked the Jews. An extension of the Kamionki labor camp was established in the city, a number of streets were marked off by barbed wire, and young Jews were put there. Many died of overwork, disease, and torture. In September 1942 a part of the camp population was transferred to Zbaraz and Kamionki. The labor camp in the city was liquidated on June 29, 1943. Those who worked in the Kamionki camp perished later. After the war, the Jewish community was not reconstituted in the city. [Ar.W.]”

More detailed information about Podwolocyzska can be obtained from Podwolocyzska and its surrounding (UKRAINE), Translation of Sefer Podwolocyzska ve-ha-sevivah. The book is edited by Zunyu Levinson and Dov Brayer, published in Haifa, Organization of former Podwolocyzska residents, 1988. JewishGen, Inc. and the Yiskor Book Project made the material in the book available. I printed the book from the WEB site <http://www.jewishgen.org/yizkor/Podvolochisk/Podvolochisk.html>. It is included with my genealogy files.

Podwolocyzska is located in the Ukraine and noted by the large star, not circled.

III. My grandfather Harry Lenchitz descended from a long line of famous Rabbis

At Passover time my grandfather Harry Lenchitz always dressed in his long white robe. He wore a beautiful yarmulke in the shape of a white cloth crown decorated with colored beads. It was truly a holiday. The second night of Passover at our home wasn't as much fun as when we attended the first night Seder service at my grandfather Nathan's home. We really had to pay attention to the Service on this second night. The noise level was down several decibels from the previous evening.

The other image vivid in my mind is that of my grandfather Hershel (as he was called by my grandmother Brona) sitting alone in the dark living room quietly singing Hebrew melodies to himself. I don't know exactly what kind of work he did. I knew he was in the egg business because I would watch with fascination how he would hold several eggs in each of his two hands quickly manipulating them in front of a candling box. The enclosed metal candling box was actually an 8-inch cube box that had a 1-inch hole on each of the 4 faces. Inside the box was a light bulb. By placing the eggs in front of the hole he could examine the inside of the egg to see if it had a red spot. A spot indicated that the egg was fertilized and couldn't be sold. It had to be disposed of. It's odd how such memories linger all these years.

While talking with my uncle Shia (Charlie) Lenchitz, I was told that his father, my grandfather Hershel delivered eggs to Franz Joseph, the "Emperor." Florence also told me the story that he delivered eggs to the "Czar." In references to Podwoloczyska, it is reported that Podwoloczyska was the largest center in Europe for distributing eggs. I can also remember my grandfather making wine for Passover. It was always white wine, never red. Many years later I read that many gentiles believed that the red wine used by the Jews at Passover was taken from the blood of gentile children. I wonder whether that was the reason he never made red wine. I'll never know.

My grandfather Harry Lenchitz descended from a long line of famous rabbis. I discovered this fact when I asked my cousins, Rochel, Chaim and Dovid Lenchitz to contribute information to our family tree. They provided me with a history dating back to the great rabbi, Solomon Ephraim of Lenchitz. Norman Lenchitz provided me with some papers copied from a source that discusses the sermons of Ephraim Luntshitz. These pages are reproduced in Appendix B and provide definitive evidence of the existence of Ephraim Luntshitz. The name Luntshitz has taken on several different spellings over the years such as, Lenchitz, Linchitz as well as Lynchitz.

A picture of his tombstone and a translation of the inscription on the tombstone were provided to me by my Aunt Sylvia Lenchitz. The tombstone indicated that Ephraim Luntshitz died on the 7th of Adar II, 1619. A picture of the tombstone and a translation of the inscription on the tombstone are presented in Appendix B.

My cousin Chaim Lenchitz provided information relating to how the descendant tree evolved from Shlomo Ephraim Luntshitz through to my grandfather Harry Lenchitz. In a letter he states that "the most compelling verification, that we are descended from the great Torah sage Shlomo Ephraim Lenchitz, is that the information was transmitted from father to son as told to me by my father. My father also told me that his father (Harry Lenchitz) saw a document of lineage, but it had become lost to the family. With all of this, my son Nason did research on this lineage and found the following: In the book, Klilat Yofi, printed in the year 1813 was found"¹⁰ In addition Chaim also said, "Add to above that the great Torah sage of the past generation, Rav Aharon Kotler, told my father that he was the 11th generation from the Kli Yakar, which makes my dear cousin and myself the 12th generation." Shlomo Ephraim Luntshitz is better known by the name Kli Yakar, which translates into English as precious vessel. One needs only to Google (or any other search engine) “Kli Yakar” to learn how important this man was. There are over 14,000 hits. One reference says,

“A spellbinding orator, he inspired his listeners with fiery sermons, which were published. His most important work is the popular commentary on the Torah, Kli Yakar ("The Precious Vessel"), in which he expounds the text in a homiletic style. It is very readable and has a captivating quality. It is published in many editions of the Chumash, including Mikraot Gedolot.”

IV My grandmother Celia Blumenstein is unknown to me

My dad never spoke of his mother, Celia Blumenstein, although I do recall him always lighting the traditional yahrzeit candle. My Dad once indicated that he had a relative from his mother's side living in Apollo, PA. While Apollo is not too far from Pittsburgh he never had an interest in finding out who they were, or exactly where they lived. Unfortunately, I never pursued it any further.

Sol Glickstein told me that he met a woman at the King David Hotel, Long Beach NY.¹¹ The woman claimed to have known Celia Blumenstein Glickstein before she died. The women indicated that Celia became very ill after the birth of her child, Morris. She also told Sol that Celia's husband Nathan was a very devoted and loving husband. He cared for her all during her 5-year long illness before she died. From the description of the symptoms told to Sol, it is Sol's contention that she may have had Muscular Dystrophy, although that disease may not have been called by that name at that time.

A. For me it all began at 584-6 Williams Avenue, in the East New York section of Brooklyn.

On November 12, 1933, at 8:30 A.M., I arrived into the world. The Birth Certificate, Registered Number 38768 indicates Place of Birth as -- New Lots Ave. That street is located in the East New York section of Brooklyn, New York. My memory of those first five years of my life is vague. However, I do have a vivid picture of the hallway where we resided at 584-6 Williams Avenue in Brooklyn. It was in an apartment house several stories high. My mother's parents Brona and Hershel Lenchitz lived across the hall. My grandmother had an eye infection and all my aunts and uncles would recall in later years my asking, "Ah see, ah Saddy (aunt Florence went by the name Faggie), ah mommy, ah feel, ah eye." While not profound, it has had significant meaning to some very special aunts and uncles.

My aunt Florence recently told me that Irving Berlin's sister jumped out the window to her death from the apartment house on Williams Avenue. His sister was suffering from cancer and would scream and scream because of pain.

After remaining at that address for a few years, we moved with my grandparents to 619 Vermont Street, also located in the East New York section of Brooklyn.

B. We moved to 619 Vermont Street in the East New York section of Brooklyn

In about 1938, my parents and my grandparent's family moved to 619 Vermont Street, another section of East New York. We rented one large apartment on the second floor of a two family house owned by an attorney named Hacker. The residents included, me, my parents Moshe and Esther, (Morris and Esther), my sister Cynthia, my grandparents Brona and Hershel, (Bertha and Harry), my aunts Faggie (Florence), Crandle (Caroline) and my uncle Shia (Charlie). My mother's brothers Raymond and Sol were married at this time and had their own apartments.

Although my recollections from those years are vague, I do recall the time I was ill and needed to take my medicine. In those days the medicine came in powder form enclosed in a paper pouch. The powder was poured on to a spoon, mixed with some water and then forced down your throat. Needless to say, I would not take my medicine without a fight. I vividly recall my Uncle Sol (my mother's brother) forcing medicine down my throat from a teaspoon. He had no mercy. Ugh! I also think he was the only one able to take my temperature. In those days one only used a rectal thermometer. That too was not fun. Boy, did I scream. I have memories of someone (it may have been the barber) coming into the room when I had scarlet fever and applying hot glass cups to my body. It worked. I am still here to tell the tale.

My best friend at that time was Victor Katz. His father was a medical doctor and lived down the street. I used Dr. Katz as my physician for many years after we moved to 289 Remsen Avenue, in the East Flatbush area of Brooklyn. I was about 6-1/2 years old when we moved. I say we, because that included again all of my grandparent's family too. My early school years in kindergarten and first grade must have been a nightmare for my parents. I did not want to attend school without my mother physically remaining in the classroom or in the hallway outside the classroom. My dad told me in later years that he had to write to the Board of Education to obtain special permission for my mother to attend public school with me. I don't remember kindergarten, but I do remember not seeing my mother at the door outside my first grade class. (She stood outside the door so that I could see her.) I recollect having kicked the teacher in the shins because she would not allow me to go out of the classroom to find my mother. After escaping from the classroom I ran home on a cold winter day. I can't recall much more of that incident. This all seems unbelievable to me now. But it is the truth as I remember it. Ask my aunts and uncles.

It is hard for me to believe that I can still vividly recall using caps (powdered bullets) to set off small projectiles by throwing the "toy" into the air and then letting it hit the ground. Upon impact the cap exploded and the "toy" would fly apart. One end would rise 10 to 15 feet in the air. These caps were the same bullets that were loaded into our "toy" pistol and fired at each other. And what about the slingshots that we made using a piece of wood and a rubber band. How things have changed today.

C. We then moved to 289 Remsen Avenue, East Flatbush section of Brooklyn

Early Years

In 1940 my father made an extremely bold move. He convinced the family to purchase a private home in the East Flatbush section of Brooklyn. It was the model home at 289 Remsen Avenue that cost about $7200. Having been a model house it included some extras like carpeting. Most of the family thought the purchase of a home was crazy. However, not everyone thought it a bad idea. My grandfather (my Dad's father) also made the decision to purchase the same style home on the other end of the street at 235 Remsen Avenue.

I lived on Remsen Avenue from 1940-1955. That was from second grade through my undergraduate years at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. I can't recall any problems in my grammar school, P.S. 219. The school was located on East 93rd street, corner Clarkson Avenue. The first friends I ever had were Ira Orenstein and Marty Zeluck. They both were born the same day and year as me, November 12, 1933. I have kept in contact with Marty and we have talked with one another once a year, to wish each other a happy birthday. Marty is a retired gynecologist living in Haddonfield, New Jersey. After attending P.S. 219 through 6th grade I went on to Winthrop Junior High School where I spent my 7th and 8th grade years.

Before my grandparents moved, they too lived in East New York, on Sheffield Avenue, across from a fire station. The buildings on Sheffield Avenue were comprised of multi-story apartment houses. The neighborhood changed, and during the 1960's most of the buildings were gutted. The dope addicts ripped the copper pipes out for salvage. Finally, as with many other areas of Brooklyn and the Bronx, the buildings were demolished.

My Dad and I revisited the East New York section of Brooklyn in the 1980's. All that remained at that time was the Fire Station. (A strange coincidence; my wife Joan once lived next door to the fire station.) The station was still active and in operation in the mid-1990's when I visited again with my wife, Joan. In fact, private homes were being built in this torn down area of East New York in the mid-1990's.

I have fond memories of growing up in Brooklyn during these years. We spent most of our free hours playing sports. Punch ball was our favorite game. It was played on the road (91st street). We would push the cars down the street if they were parked on our playing area. I don't recall anyone complaining. On the same street we would play stickball, a watered down version of baseball using a broomstick in place of a bat and a soft rubber ball (similar to a tennis ball) in place of a hardball (or softball). The road was used as the playing field and the same rules used in baseball applied. One was always on the lookout for moving cars. They were usually stopped by somebody's hand signal if we were in the middle of a "play." The game always took precedence.

Later, basketball became a daily event. We played some sport every afternoon after school. The weekends were also devoted to playing sports, especially basketball. In the winter we would shovel the snow off the courts that were located in the schoolyard of P.S. 219. We also engaged in touch football. Baseball wasn't played much because of the lack of a nearby baseball field. Street skating was also a favorite past time. We would skate for miles on the roads throughout the neighborhood.

Since scooters made the headlines in the 1990's, selling for about $79.95, I have to tell you about the one I crafted by myself. A wooden orange crate was nailed to a 36 inch long, 4 inch wide by 1/2-inch thick board that was used as the base plate. A metal street skate was taken apart and the front and back pair of wheels would then be fastened to the front and back of the board. My scooter was painted black. It cost nothing, since all the wood was scrap. The nails were taken from other wooden boxes. I can't recall there being a hardware store where you could buy nails and supplies. Everything came from scrap pieces that were recycled. It was by far the fastest scooter in the neighborhood. My sister Cynthia would sit inside the box as I rode the scooter on the road from one end of town to the other. What would you say today if you saw a small 4-year old girl coasting along inside a box on the main-street? How times have changed!

And, of course, there was a time of the year that bicycle riding became the fad. We would bike all the way to Canarsie, which was 10 to 15 miles from our home. I never told my mother where I was going. I left after breakfast, took a lunch with me and as long as I returned on time for dinner no one said a word or even cared. Can you imagine if our kids did that today?

When I was about age 10 or 11, my parents decided that it was time for piano lessons. I don't think I was ever asked if I wanted to play the piano. All I can recall is that a piano showed up in the house and I had to indulge in weekly lessons. I tolerated the lessons and stayed with them through most of high school. I took the lessons only because my parents expected me to. My sister Cynthia also started piano lessons but I do not think she really got beyond, "I Am an Indian Boy," while pounding on middle C-C-C-C-C-C.

The summers were spent lounging on the streets of Brooklyn. Chess was played during many of the long summer days. I would occasionally go swimming with Marty Zeluck's parents at Rockaway Beach. Marty's dad had a car. Other warm days were spent on tar beach. Tar beach was located on the roof of any of several nearby apartment houses. It was called tar beach because on a really hot day the tar on the roof would soften and stick to the soles of your shoes. We would sunbathe on the roof lying on a blanket or we would often borrow one of the beach chairs that belonged to some tenant. As I look back, growing up in Brooklyn was a terrific experience.

High School Years

I always enjoyed building things and tinkering around the house. For several years it was model airplanes that fascinated me. If I wasn't building a scooter then I was constructing a racing car for the Soap Box Derby. The backyard garden was my responsibility. During the 1940's I tended to our victory garden. If the grass had to be cut, I took care of it using a simple grass cutter that was pushed by hand. There were no gas-run products in those days. I always tended to the small repairs that needed to be done around the house.

Being mechanically inclined, it therefore seemed natural that I ended up attending Brooklyn Technical High School. In addition to teaching shop courses such as carpentry, machine shop, foundry, aeronautical repairs, etc., the school required high academic standards. One had to pass an exam that tested both his academic ability as well as his mechanical aptitude in order to get accepted to this prestigious high school. It was excellently suited for anyone interested in engineering and science, although at that time I never heard of the word, engineering.

I took the test, was admitted and traveled for four years on the bus, then train and finally walked the last 15 minutes to the high school. It was located in downtown Brooklyn at 29 Fort Green Place. It took me over an hour to get to high school. The winter seasons were especially tough. I had to wait for the bus and many times watched it pass by because it was full. To get on the train one had to push and squeeze. The class schedule was longer than at Tilden High School. Tilden was the local high school where classes ended at 1:00 P.M. I didn't leave school until 3:00 PM, and then had to make the long journey home. I must have been a devoted and determined student to complete my stay at Brooklyn Tech. I never made any close friends at high school since we all commuted from distant neighborhoods. Students came from other parts of Brooklyn, the Bronx, and many from Long Island.

Brooklyn Tech provided a terrific learning experience. In addition to the usual academic courses like math, physics, and chemistry; we took shop courses. As a freshman, we had wood shop. I made a wooden pattern (a block of wood with tapered edges). In our sophomore year I used the pattern in our foundry shop where I created a metal mold of the wooden pattern. Machine shop was taken during our junior or senior year. I still have the metal holder I made in machine shop to hold a tap. The tap is used to put screw threads in a hole. Since I was expected to continue on to college, I enrolled in the college preparatory curriculum. Those not in the college prep program took courses in automotive mechanics or in aeronautical repairs. Others, with carpentry in mind, worked on constructing a full size wooden house as part of their shop curriculum. Those in the college prep curriculum needed time for a foreign language and extra science and math courses. These courses were required for college entry.

Being quite good in math, I was able to take calculus in high school. It was unusual during those years for high schools to teach such an advanced math course. All students were required to take the New York State Regent Exams. Scoring 100 in Algebra I, Geometry and Advanced Algebra, and 95 in Solid Geometry gave me the highest Regent Exam average score for mathematics in my graduating class of about 1500 students. That earned me the Math Medal for Graduation. I was quite proud. I always had the feeling that my advanced math instructor was disappointed since there were other students in our advanced math class that were significantly more knowledgeable than I was in mathematics. I guess I was good at taking exams.

My uncle Sol Linchytz (the automobile dealer) recently informed me that he too went to Brooklyn Tech. It was a surprise to me. Perhaps he had some influence on my decision to attend this High School.

Brooklyn was not like the suburbs of cities like Pittsburgh. All one needed to do was walk two to three blocks to the schoolyard and there were 10-15 friends, all within one year of your age. We had no adult supervision. The Police Athletic League (PAL) was just starting to give kids the opportunity to join organized league sports. However, my friends and I never participated. We organized our own teams and played teams from other neighborhoods, one or two blocks away.

In our teens my friends and I started a club called the Knights. I believe we did this so we could wear a team jacket. We may have even rented a basement of a private home for club meetings. Donald Fletcher, Marty Bluman, Marty Zeluck, Stanley Angel and half dozen others were members of the club.

One of the more memorable events that took place during two summers of my teen years was my participation in the Soap Box Derby sponsored by Chevrolet. The construction of the racecar was a challenge. My cousin Howie (Chaim) Lenchitz and I carried several 8-foot lengths of 2x4's from the lumber yard located on Church Avenue, about a mile from my home on Remsen Avenue. We removed nails from used lumber and reused them to build the Soap Box racing car. I never thought of buying new nails. We had to get the racing car to the Chevy dealership since they were in charge of transporting the car to the racetrack. This meant Chaim and I had to push the car for many blocks since the auto dealer was at least a half-mile from my home. The first year I entered the Soap Box Derby, the race was held on some hill in the Bronx. I remember losing control while coming down the raceway and actually crossed the finish line with the rear wheels first. The next year it was held in Brooklyn, inside Prospect Park. While I didn't win any race, it was great fun. The wheels were expensive ($10.00 per set), so I was sponsored by the movie actress, Joan Fontaine for the second year. My car was called "Brute Force" named after a movie of the same name that she played in.

Chaim was like a brother to me. He lived down the street in the same home as my other grandparents, Nathan and Riva Glickstein. Two large families lived in this 3-bedroom home. That was what helped make our families so close. Chaim and I spent considerable time together even after he and his siblings were sent to the local Yeshiva. His father Solomon Lenchitz had worked for the United States Post Office for many years but left sometime in the 1940's. After high school, Chaim and I took different paths. His father became a Rabbi, as did he and his brother David (later called Dovid). Chaim currently teaches at a Yeshiva in Brooklyn and Dovid teaches at a Yeshiva in Lakewood, NJ. As the years have passed, I have lived as a Conservative Jew giving up many of my Orthodox traditions. We have conversed very briefly over the past fifty years, but I will always have a deep affection for my dear cousin Chaim.

While we all came from a very Orthodox Jewish background, my Uncle Sol and his family took off into what today one would call extreme orthodoxy. Growing up at that time, we would rarely turn the lights on during Shabbat. For Shabbat, a burner on the gas stove would always be left on so that one would not have to light a fire. Our home was strictly kosher. We never rode in a car nor traveled on Shabbat. It wasn't until high school that I had my first non-kosher food outside my home. Today, one might ask if it was difficult living such an orthodox Jewish life. The answer is categorically, No! I never gave it a thought. That was the way we lived! There was no other way.

In the above paragraphs I may have interchanged Howie and Chaim several times. All members of my family, parents, uncles and aunts were referred to by their Yiddish names. This is just the way it was. For example, my aunts Faggie (Florence), Bessie (Bernice), Crandle (Caroline), and my uncles, Shloime (Sol G.), Shirky (Sol L.), and Charlie (Shia) were always called by their Yiddish names. My Uncle Ruben Linchitz was known as the hook because of the shape of his nose. My dad was always called Moish (Morris), my grandmother Brona (Bertha), and my grandfather Hershel (Harry). For some reason many of my uncles not only referred to me as Shloime, but also used the endearing term Butch. This was our natural mannerism. In our later years we all became Americanized, the Yiddish names were dropped for their English equivalent.

College Years

After graduating high school in January 1952, I went on to attend The Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. Most of my other close friends; Marty Zeluck, Howard Gershon, Harry Stein and Phil Alper went on to become pre-med students. Marty was the only person I knew who attended an out of town college-Cornell University. The others went to New York University or Columbia University. Eventually they all attended medical school in downtown Brooklyn (LIU). I lost track of the rest of our local friends (there were dozens) from the neighborhood.

Attending the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn provided me with a wonderful undergraduate college experience. I went into the Electrical Engineering program, although I didn't really know what electrical engineering was about. I was intrigued with my physics course in high school. I spoke with my Uncle Shia (Charlie Lenchitz) and told him that I'd like to study atomic structure, which is made up of nuclei and electrons. He advised me that electricity had much to do with electrons and said I should take electrical engineering. I did. That was a mistake! While many of my elective subjects that I took were additional physics and math courses, I always regretted not being able to take all the physics and chemistry courses that the physics majors took. I did take all the advanced math courses.

I also became active in the school's extra curriculum activities. I was a member of the staff of the school newspaper, student council, glee club, philosophy club and prom committee. I was elected to serve as the Jr. and Sr. Class Treasurer, AIEE Metropolitan Student Council President, and joined in an assortment of other school activities. I was inducted into Tau Beta Pi (Engineering Honor Society), Eta Kappa Nu (Electrical Engineering Honor Society) and made Who's Who Among Students in 1955. In my senior year, I served as editor of our Yearbook, POLYWOG. Joe Wallace, my managing editor and editor of the school newspaper convinced me that we should have the yearbook printed with a firm located in Chicago, IL instead of with the usual printer in New York City. What a mistake! The company employees went on strike and they couldn't deliver our yearbook until a couple of months after graduation. It was "Glickstein's folly." I had a great time at Poly.

One of my closest friends throughout my years in Poly was Frank Nash. Frank was in physics and we spent many hours studying together, talking philosophy, reading books and just having a wonderful relationship. Frank went on to Columbia University to get his Ph.D. He then went to work at Bell Labs. I haven't heard from him since. Another close friend at Poly was Burt Levine. Burt traveled to Poly from Long Beach, Long Island. That must have been quite a trip every day. He later became a lawyer living in New Jersey.

After my freshman year at Poly, I joined the Phi Alpha fraternity. It was a social club that rented a basement of some house about a block or two from the school. It was a useful place to just hang out. The facility was used on weekends for parties. In early 2001 I attended a Phi Alpha reunion where some 35 "brothers" who graduated within a year of each other came to renew old acquaintances for the first time in 46 years. It was a memorable weekend.

Summers

The summer breaks during my last year in high school and the first two years of college were spent working as a busboy in the Catskills. The last two summers were spent in Long Beach, Long Island. My first job in the Catskills was with the Lakeside Inn and Country Club, adjacent to Grossinger's Hotel in Livingston, New York. Grossinger's and the Concord Hotels were the two best and most expensive hotels in the Catskills. We all worked 7 days a week, rising at 6:30 AM for the breakfast meal and collapsing after the supper meal ended at about 8:30 PM. While the hours were long and the sleeping arrangements meager, it wasn't bad. There were stage shows and entertainment for the guests (which we could attend) every evening. The comradery made the summer an adventure. The last two summers were spent at the Murida Hotel in Long Beach, NY. That was heaven since we only worked 6-days per week. At least we had something to look forward to at the end of each week. Marty Zeluck and I both had jobs at the same hotel. Together, we purchased a car one summer. It was a junk box that my uncle Shirky (he had an auto dealership) sold to us for $50.00. What made these summers extremely tolerable was being able to put away over $500 each summer that could be used for college.

I had given thought to attending Brooklyn College where tuition was free. However, I believe it was my father that wanted me to attend Brooklyn Poly and said that the $700/year tuition didn't matter to him. I am not sure if my parents really understood what I was studying in college. I can't recall ever receiving any help in elementary school or high school. I brought home report cards with good grades and they were extremely happy. My mother probably would have liked me to become an accountant. I was always good with numbers and she was trained and worked as a bookkeeper.

D. After graduation it was on to Utica NY, Milwaukee WI, Schenectady NY, Ithaca NY

After graduation in June 1955, I went to work for the General Electric Company. Jobs were plentiful for engineers in 1955. I wouldn't think of staying in New York. I wanted to see the country. General Electric offered a one-year training program where trainees were given the opportunity to work at various plants for a three-month period. This provided me the opportunity to observe what was being done in various parts of the company. After a year I could then choose my work site. That opportunity took me to a variety of cities, working assignments and various kinds of work environments. My Dad gave me his 1951 Kaiser (automobile) and off I went. I packed the car with all of my belongings and drove to Utica, a small town in upstate New York. I lived with three other GE junior engineers in someone's home, renting one of the bedrooms. It was an interesting experience living for the first time with people born and raised outside of Brooklyn.

I knew immediately after my first assignment at the GE Electronics plant in Utica that electrical engineering was not for me. I needed to return to school to study physics. Why physics? There is a difference in thinking between engineering and a pure science like physics. I wasn't interested in building a bigger or better vehicle. I wanted to understand nature. What are we? How did this miraculous universe come to be what it is? Why do the stars twinkle and why is the sky blue? Those were the type questions that I wanted to seek answers to. Engineering was just not going to be my cup of tea. I wanted to be a peasant among the kings rather than a king among the peasants.

I planned my next assignment to be at the Milwaukee, WI plant where GE manufactured X-ray machines. To study the impact of electrons to produce x-rays sounded exciting and I thought would be of interest to me. From there, I went on to spend six months in Schenectady, NY working in a nuclear reactor design group where studying neutron reactions was quite enjoyable. I took up skiing during that winter and fell in love with the sport. For $15.00 I was able to buy a pair of used ski boots and skis. I went skiing almost every weekend. The winter was cold in Schenectady with temperatures reaching 25 degrees below zero. The car, (the Kaiser) had an extremely hard time starting in the cold mornings, but it survived.

It was in the fall of 1955 that I spoke with personnel at the General Electric Education Office. I informed them that I planned to return to graduate school in September 1956 after completing my one-year GE assignment. As I look back I find it hard to imagine calling GE management and telling them that I wanted to be transferred to the Reactor Division in Schenectady, NY and then to their plant in Ithaca, NY. The reason was that I planned to leave the company in 8-months and return to graduate school. But I did just that. After Schenectady, I spent a wonderful summer living in the Phi Alpha fraternity on the Cornell University campus. Unfortunately I had to work in General Electric's electronics lab in Ithaca, New York in an assignment I really didn't enjoy.

My most frightening experience in Ithaca happened while swimming in a nearby lake. I was walking along the edge of the waterfall above the lake and began to think about what would happen if I fell. Soon after that thought came to me, I slipped and bounced down the rocks from the top of the falls. I recall thinking what the newspaper headline would say, "Young GE Engineer Drowns Falling From Falls". My mother would be horrified.

During this time, I applied to Penn State University because they had a nuclear reactor facility. I also applied to Purdue University, possibly because they too had a research reactor. Penn State offered me a teaching assistantship, which covered the cost of my education and living expenses. I accepted. I left Ithaca in August 1956. Before driving home to Brooklyn for a short vacation to see the family, I stopped at Penn State in State College, PA to find a room to rent for the fall semester. It was there, for the first time that I experienced anti-Semitism. After seeing a room advertised in the Graduate School listing of available rooms for rent, I went to visit the home and accepted the room. However, after giving the woman my name, she said, "you are Jewish." She wouldn't rent the room to me. I never had something like that happen to me. I reported the incident to the Graduate School office. I am not sure what action was taken with respect to my complaint. I was totally shocked and unprepared for such an experience.

In the fall of 1955, I returned to Penn State, and without any trouble found a room at the home of a Miss Gast on College Avenue. I resided there with a couple of other Penn State undergraduates.

E. I attended Pennsylvania State University Graduate School in State College, PA

After resigning my position at GE in the summer of 1956, I returned home to Remsen Avenue for a few weeks of relaxation. In the fall I returned to Penn State where I rented a nice large single room in Mrs. Gast's home on West College Avenue. I lived with two other Penn State students, Dave McCready, an undergraduate who came from Altoona, PA and owned a motorcycle, and an older undergraduate student whose name I can't recall.

Penn State was wonderful. The courses were stimulating. Teaching physics classes as a physics assistant was a terrific experience and all was going great. I attended the football games on Saturdays with much fervor. The evening lectures and Artist Series programs were attended at no cost, and most of my remaining free time was spent studying. The two hundred or so dollars that I received every month from my assistantship was more than enough to take care of my daily living needs and support for the "red devil" Kaiser automobile. That was until I met the dream of my life, Joan Katz. Joan roomed with a young graduate student, Helene Fuererman. Helene and I dated for a short time back in Brooklyn during my undergraduate days. Joan will tell you that Helene wanted to marry me. When I met Helene and Joan one evening on College Avenue in February 1957, I invited them to go skiing with the Penn State ski club, Helene said no. Joan accepted after I agreed to loan her $50.00, which she needed for the trip. I was a very trusting soul and I am not sure whether this loan was ever formally returned.

It turned out to be a memorable weekend. Joan will tell you she was horrified when I wouldn't help her get up after she had fallen with her skis. When I took skiing lessons while living in Schenectady, NY my instructor always insisted that you must learn to get up without any help after falling. That little bit of information has always remained with me and I have tried to instill that in others. Joan still doesn't understand. Skiing was great.

That Saturday night there was a dance at the Lodge. Joan has told the story that some young girl at the dance asked her how long we had been engaged. We had danced so well together she assumed we were more than two strangers. Joan replied she hardly knew me, but that changed very quickly. After that weekend ski trip my life was significantly interrupted. We spent every free moment together. My grades suffered terribly, but I managed to pass. With a C in math I was a bit worried. You needed B's or better for graduate credit. After a couple of months of dating, Joan provided me with what one would call an ultimatum. She was graduating with her Master's degree and asked, "Should I stay in State College or should I accept a job elsewhere?" We both decided that marriage was the thing to do. I traveled to Brooklyn a few months later and introduced myself to Joan's parents. I went by myself since Joan had to stay in State College that weekend. I must have had guts going alone. Joan's dad asked me about my intentions and I recall saying "we'll see." The meal Joan's mom cooked was great. That isn't saying too much since, till this day I have never had a bad meal in my life.

Joan visited my family at our Passover Seder at Pop's house in April 1957. It was there that she realized she had lived across the street from my grandfather's apartment on Sheffield Avenue before he moved to Remsen Avenue. She remembered the family well. I bought Joan a gold locket for her birthday and had the letters JK (for Joan Katz) engraved in large script on the back of the locket. Joan later told me that she wondered why JK was engraved when she thought she was soon to be a Glickstein. It never occurred to me. I was thrilled with the gift although I questioned whether or not to spend so much money ($50.00) for this locket. When I discussed this with my uncle, Herman Glick, he said, "If you love her and intend to marry her, spend the money and buy it." I did!

Buying the engagement ring was another ordeal. We looked at rings in downtown State College jewelry stores and I don't recall deciding on any special design. I finally resorted to help from my close friend Howard Gershon's father. He was in the jewelry business and recommended a very high quality 1-carat diamond. He strongly suggested investing in the more expensive platinum setting. Without hesitation I spent most of the money in my Passport Savings account. That account started in first grade when I would bring in a nickel once a week to school. The teacher would collect the envelopes containing our money and it was put into our Passport Account at the East New York Savings Bank. What impressed me at that time was that some people would bring in dimes and quarters. However, in time it all added up.

We both returned to Brooklyn in the summer of 1957. I got a job working as a technician in an electronics lab at Brooklyn PolyTech. After making tentative plans for a wedding Joan and I decided to elope. We were married on Friday, July 12, 1957. We honeymooned in State College, PA since Joan needed to meet with her thesis advisor the following Monday. It was a shock for both our families. We lived with Joan's parents for the rest of the summer and then returned to State College for the fall semester.

As I look back, the remaining years as a graduate student at Penn State were some of the best years of our lives. Joan had an excellent position as a Speech Language teacher in the Centre County school system, earning more dollars than all other graduate couples. After living in the basement of a single-family home on 426 1/2 Ridge Avenue for a short while, we moved into the most exclusive new apartment house in town. It was located about 2 miles from the University on South Allen Street. We were unable to get the furnished apartment with the brick wall as we wanted, but we were delighted. It was great. I bicycled or walked to school every day.

Joan went to work every morning except when the car wouldn't start during the cold State College winters. To overcome that problem, I decided to leave the engine running all night. After checking it for the first few hours of the evening to see that it was running, I went to sleep. Needless to say, when we awoke in the morning the car engine had stalled and it wouldn't start. We then called the AAA as usual. They refused to renew our membership the following year! I complained on the grounds that we now had another car, a 1955 Buick.

Even though we changed apartments (to the one with the brick wall) after our neighbors Ron and Ev Lang moved out, we decided to change our residence again to Graduate Circle once we learned that our first child was on the way. We needed two bedrooms. Once again, being the first tenants in the apartments at Graduate Circle made moving quite pleasant. The apartment was just a five-minute walk from the reactor building where I did my thesis research. The physics department located in the main part of the campus was just ten minutes away. It was a great location.

Steven came along on November 13, 1960. Joan's parents were visiting with us and were scheduled to drive back to Brooklyn on that day. Fortunately for them, Joan went into labor on the morning of the 13th and we all drove to the hospital, which was located in Bellefonte, PA, about 10 miles from State College.

We had lots of friends, mostly from the graduate student club at Hillel. The names that I can remember are Sandy and Mort Levy, Shirley and Hy Schultz, Eve and Ron Lang, Barbara and Ira Starrer, and Fran and Dan Shuster. There were many other friends but these are the ones that remain fixed in my memory. We have been in touch with all of the above named friends through the years and most recently (2003) visited in Florida with Ira & Barbara Starrer for the first time in over 40 years.

My thesis advisor, Dr. Rolf Winter took a leave of absence in order to accept a temporary position in England in September 1960. I thought that would be catastrophic. However, it was just the opposite. He assigned Prof. Douglas Donahue to act as my advisor while he was in England. My thesis entitled, "A Study of F20" was quickly approved and I officially graduated in December 1961.

Before leaving for England, Dr. Winter helped me secure a Post-Doctoral position as a Research Associate in the Physics Department at Princeton University. We were all thrilled and looked forward to this new opportunity. The University packed our belongings and off we went to Princeton, New Jersey beginning July 1, 1961.

Stan and Joan, 1958

F. I then went on to Post-Doctoral Studies at Princeton University

In the summer of 1961, Joan, Steven, and I found ourselves living in the quaint little town of Princeton, New Jersey, home of Princeton University. Having just completed my doctoral studies at Penn State University I was fortunate to receive a Post-Doctoral position at Princeton University in the Physics Department working for Prof. Donald Hamilton. The work involved measuring spin, hyperfine structure and nuclear magnetic dipole moments of radioactive nuclei. The professional experience was extremely rewarding. To be sitting among the top scientists in the world during our weekly Thursday afternoon seminar was truly an honor. I was always impressed when Prof. Eugene Wigner would ask a question. He would always apologize for interrupting the speaker and then very meekly ask what he said was a “simple question.” His physical build and his polite mannerism reminded me of my grandfather, Pop. Professor Eugene P. Wigner won the 1963 Nobel Prize in Physics for his contributions to the theory of the atomic nucleus and elementary particles, particularly through the discovery and application of fundamental symmetry principles. As I said previously when I left the field of engineering and chose to return to physics, I chose to live as a peasant among the kings rather than a king among the peasants. I was indeed living as a peasant among the kings.

Relocating our home to the grounds of this prestigious University was an exciting moment in our lives. We were one of the first families to move into this newly constructed Junior Faculty Housing complex, called Lakeside Apartments. Our apartment was on the 7th and 8th floor of an eight-story apartment house located at 7x Faculty Drive. The entrance to the apartment was on the seventh floor. It included a living room, kitchen, and balcony overlooking Lake Carnegie. The three bedrooms were one flight up located on the eighth floor. As the first tenants in the apartment everything was sparkling clean and we loved the view overlooking the lake. The apartment house was located in a thickly wooded area 150 feet from the shore of the lake and about 2 miles from my office in the Physics Building on the campus of Princeton University.

Princeton was quite a change from Penn State. We lived in Jr. Faculty housing. Joan was a member of the Jr. Faculty Wives’ Club. It wasn’t many years before we arrived in 1961 that Jr. Faculty wives were expected to call on senior faculty wives’ home and leave a calling card if they were not home. Often one would call knowing no one was home.

One day Joan found a woman’s purse in the woods nearby our apartment house. She returned it to its owner and the next day she received a dozen roses from an undergraduate gentleman. He was the young lady’s boyfriend. In addition, Joan and I were invited to dinner at the gentleman’s Club. Princeton Clubs were a substitute for the traditional college fraternity house. Yes, protocol at Princeton was a bit different from Penn State.

In the fall of 1961, my chronic back pains began bothering me again. I spent a couple of weeks in bed at home and then a month in a Brooklyn hospital, under the care of an orthopedist Dr. Schneider. My sister Cynthia worked for Dr. Schneider. I remember him saying, “If you can’t afford to lie in bed for an unknown amount of time, then it is time to operate.” After 6-weeks of bed rest I decided to have a back operation. He recommended the neurosurgeon for the operation. Again, I survived, but it was a very tough survival.

The survival was greatly helped by the assurance given to Joan and I by Professor Hamilton. I worked for Prof. Hamilton and he told us not to worry and to take all the time that was needed to recover. My first thought at this moment is to say that academic world is more relaxed than the business world and perhaps more considerate. However, that is not true. I had a second major back problem in the early 1980’s while working at the Bettis Laboratory. That illness kept me out of work for almost 3-months. Again, without my asking, Al O'Brokta, my senior manager at Bettis told Joan and I not to worry about the time off needed to recuperate. I was given 3-months of sick leave with full pay.

About one year after arriving in Princeton, on October 2, 1962 Barbara arrived into our family. Almost one year later on September 11, 1963 it was Karen's turn. She too was born in Princeton Hospital. Life was ideal. Joan worked on Saturday for the Easter Seal Society while I cared for our three wonderful children. I spent two wonderful years as a Research Associate. In my third and final year at the University I served as an Instructor, teaching freshman physics. It was quite a change from Penn State. The quality of the faculty and students was an order of magnitude above that of my Alma Mater, PSU. Working and teaching at the University was an unforgettable challenge and experience.

G. We then went on to encounter the real world in Pittsburgh, PA

After three years at Princeton, it was time to move on. That was the usual course of action for Post-Docs. It was decision time once again. What kind of job do I look for? I interviewed at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, VA and also with Combustion Engineering in Connecticut. I didn't know exactly what I wanted to do.

Staying in academia meant looking for a small school. I didn't think I had the credentials for a permanent position at a prestigious university like Princeton. The Physics faculty at Princeton was among the best in the country. I understood my academic limitations. After 3-years at Princeton I knew I couldn't compete in their league. The industrial world was lucrative from a money standpoint but making lots of money never appealed to me. I was content and believed we could live on whatever salary we had. There was never any discussion about what job would provide more income. I remember Joan's dad being very surprised when I took the position at Princeton for $7000 and gave up the opportunity to potentially earn 25% more income if I had taken an industrial position when we left Penn State. Money was never a consideration. Why? I don't know. Studying physics and trying to understand the forces of nature was much more exciting and rewarding than working to increase one's salary.

I finally decided to see what the real world looked like in industry. I accepted a position with Westinghouse Electric Co.'s Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory at a salary of $11,000. It was a government lab run by Admiral Hyman Rickover, known as the Father of the Nuclear Navy. He was a charismatic no nonsense leader that was admired by all who knew him. Books have been written about him, so I will not say any more. Bettis Lab was dedicated to the development of nuclear power exclusively for the nuclear navy and had a secondary interest in nuclear power for the commercial world. It was operated for the government by the Westinghouse Electric Corporation and was located in West Mifflin, PA about 10 miles south of the city of Pittsburgh, PA.

Home Sweet Home: In the spring of 1964, after accepting a position at Bettis Laboratory, Joan and I visited Pittsburgh looking for a place to live, compliments of Bettis. What a change from the country-like atmosphere at Princeton! After a hectic 2-day search we found a house to rent. Bettis paid for us to fly to Pittsburgh with the kids via Allegheny Airlines. My parents drove the red devil, the Kaiser to Pittsburgh. We moved into a rented multi-story home at 332 West Bruceton Road, about five miles from Bettis. It appeared to be the closest available spot to my workplace. I started work on July 1, 1964. I had visions of bicycling to work on a daily basis as I had done at Penn State and at Princeton. Lebanon Church Road's traffic quickly convinced me that such a thought was impossible.

In 1966, we purchased the multi-level home we were renting on Bruceton Road for about $16,000. On January 11, 1967 we added Cathy to our collection. I spent the next several years personally fixing up the house. This included opening an additional entrance to the downstairs game room, adding concrete patios in the front and back of the house and finishing the attic so Steven could have his own room. We then had a new asphalt driveway installed. After all that work was completed, Joan decided the house wasn't suitable. While I was content right where I was, Joan felt the need for more spacious quarters.

Against my desire, she found a magnificent lot at 321 Challen Drive and contracted with Ryan builders to put up our present two-story, 5-bedroom home. She was brilliant! As I look back, it was the smartest move we made. Thank you, Sweetheart! Joan chose the location under the assumption that the backyard was going to be a level lot. She was assured that it would be when she contracted with Ryan builders. Fortunately it didn't work out that way. The backyard ended up being sloped. After some thought, we had a bulldozer reconfigure the backyard. We ended up with a multi-level backyard. It turned out to be superb. She couldn't have planned it better if she tried.

I learned from our previous home that asphalt which the Ryan builders planned to use for the driveway was not the best material for a driveway. Thus, when we moved into our home on October 1, 1970 the driveway was left unfinished except for a stone base. We also asked that the grounds not be seeded, just leveled. I would take care of the minor details of finishing the driveway and grounds myself. The following spring I prepared the driveway and back patio area with all the necessary 2x4's and supports. I then convinced about 10 friends to help me install a concrete foundation for a patio, walkway, and driveway. On a Saturday morning the concrete trucks poured the cement. It took 10 strong backs to put the concrete into its final form. With Jack Murphy's supervision and with the help of Sy Weiss, Bob Burack and the rest of the crew we worked our butts off and the job was completed. Everyone was rewarded with beer and goodies for lunch. After 36 years the driveway looks in pretty good shape.

Later that spring I had sod delivered to the front of our home and I laid the grass sod in place. I used the grass seed Ryan gave me and seeded the backyard myself the prior fall. Both lawns looked great for many years until the grubs ate most of the front lawn. Living in the suburbs of Pittsburgh has been an exciting experience. We became active participants at the local conservative congregation, Beth Israel Center. I became President for two years, 1974-1976.

Joan's Activities: Joan worked part-time as a Speech Therapist at St. Margaret's Hospital. She also attended the University of Pittsburgh on a part-time basis. After many years of attending classes she finally received her doctorate in 1978. I took the three girls to the graduation ceremony. At the time of her graduation, Steve was at Penn State University. Graduation was a memorable evening. We were all proud, especially me. Joan's mom was concerned that I would be upset about Joan getting her doctorate degree. Perhaps she thought I would be concerned about the competition. Joan's dad would have been extremely proud to see his daughter receive her Ph.D. Diploma. Unfortunately, he passed away the prior year. Her mother who was living in Florida at this time was also unable to be present at this momentous occasion.

Later, in the early 1980's, Joan was chosen to be a delegate for the State of Pennsylvania, to attend the White House Conference on Aging. At the Conference in Washington, DC she met Martha Fenchak. The two of them started a consulting business that dealt with Alzheimer's disease. Joan gained expertise in that field and the business went well for a while. A few years later Joan decided to break her relationship with her partner and a cruel divorce took place. I would love to be able to forget the headaches we had while trying to settle the lawsuits with Martha. It lasted about 6 years, slowly dwindling away to nothing. Looking back, we were very fortunate to remove ourselves from associating with Martha Fenchak Bell. In 2005 she was found guilty of Medicare fraud and was later tried in a criminal homicide case in the death of a patient at a Nursing Home where she served as its Administrator. She is currently serving time in jail for these charges. We did learn something from our association with Mrs. Bell. It only took about 10 months to settle the lawsuits when Joan broke up with her second partner.

Overall, Joan's work experience was wonderful. She completed writing a book on the subject of Alzheimer's disease and caring for the patient. We first printed it ourselves, with the title "Fighting Back." It was later published by Aspen Publications as "Therapeutic Interventions in Alzheimer's Disease" and became a best seller for Aspen. As a result of her connections with Aspen Publications she became the editor of a monthly newsletter entitled, "Focus on Geriatric Care and Rehabilitation" (FOGCAR). She kept that position for 13 years.

Joan and her second business partner, Gail Neustadt, wrote another best seller published by Aspen Publications in 1992. It was titled "Reimbursable Geriatric Service Delivery, A Functional Maintenance Therapy System." Their small business began in 1991 with just the two of them. It soon grew into a multimillion-dollar activity with almost 40 employees. It was a grand ride. Joan semi-retired in 1999 and the breakup became ugly. After a 10-month dispute with her partner, it was finally settled in October 2000. As difficult as the break-up was, Joan's successful 10-year business adventure with her second partner Gail was an experience that I treasure. It was wonderful and will remain vivid in my mind forever. It started with two employees, Joan and Gail. Within a very short time it grew to a staff of 40 persons. That was quite a feat. Too bad it couldn't have concluded with a more pleasant ending. However, just recently after Gail's husband David passed away in 2008, we have all reconciled and are friends once again. For that we are all very grateful.

At the Southwestern Pennsylvania Partnership for Aging (SWPPA) annual winter meeting in 2010 Joan was chosen as the recipient of The Charles W. Pruitt Jr. Award of Excellence. The award is given each year by SWPPA to an individual residing or working in the ten-county southwestern Pennsylvania region who has made an outstanding contribution in the field of aging which has a regional, state or national impact. It was quite an honor; the culmination of 30 years of dedicated work in the field of aging. The nomination letter that won her that award is contained in Appendix C.

Stan's Activities: Upon arriving in Pittsburgh we soon joined Beth Israel Center. Immediately, I became a Sunday school teacher and remained one for many years. Although there was the need to awake early on Sunday, I enjoyed teaching the youngsters. I thought I was good at it. I hope I was. After many years of serving as the Education Director, President of Beth Israel Center, and Chairman of the Religious Affairs committee, I threw in the towel about 1998. After retiring from Bettis on February 1, 1999 and with Beth Israel Center going through some hard times, I renewed my commitment to the Center and became active in the synagogue activities once again, in 2000.

Working at the Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory turned out to be an extremely rewarding professional experience. I initially had the vision that my stay at Bettis was going to be for just a few years before I would return to the academic world. Instead, I stayed for 34-1/2 years taking on a variety of tasks. My first assignment was as an experimental nuclear physicist working in an experimental reactor physics section for a couple of years. When an opening became available to work with the Van de Graaf accelerator, I applied for the position. Much to my astonishment I was accepted. It was like having a research position in a University setting. With George Tessler as my partner, work was even more enjoyable. George and I made a perfect match. I was a pusher and took on new problems. I also made sure our achievements would be published (see Appendix D). George took on the technical problems and made sure they were solved. That is how I saw it. Perhaps George has other recollections. I later introduced George to the woman who became his wife and we have all remained good friends.

In the early 1970's, things changed at the Bettis Laboratory. Work activity at the lab had to be oriented toward a final product. No more pie in the sky research for research sake. The Van de Graaf facility was shut down. Members of the group were scattered to other positions. I was given the opportunity to join a welding group. That was a drastic change from studying the forces of nature through nuclear physics experiments. However, I quickly made the most of it. In just a few months I became an expert in the "physics of the welding process." Teaming up with Ed Friedman at the laboratory was a great opportunity. We both introduced the welding community to the physics of welding and computer simulation of the welding process. In a few years we were respected as worldwide experts in this research area of welding. I was promoted to Fellow Scientist and later to an Advisory Scientist.

In addition to exploring the physics of the welding process I developed an interest in "talking computers." Howard Ho and I developed a system where the computer talked to a human, and the human replied by talking back to the computer. Soon after that involvement, I became interested in using the laser as a welding tool. In the mid-1980's I put together a state-of-the-art Laser Welding Laboratory at Bettis. However, after seven fruitful years working in the field of welding, Ed Friedman and I were both a bit tired and there were changes at the laboratory. I soon found myself in search of a new position. Dr. John Conley asked me to join his group in the Reactor Physics Department doing whatever I wanted. I accepted and then started looking for something to do. That is not always as easy as you think. You have to be creative to be able to do something worthwhile and it takes considerable effort and significant stress. The lab operated a school called the Bettis Reactor Engineering School (BRES). Every 6-months a fresh group of navy officers who were recently assigned to work for Naval Reactors and oversee operations for the government attended this school. It was a very intense full time curriculum devoted to improving all of the students' technical knowledge of nuclear reactors. It was presented on a graduate school level. All these officers had undergraduate degrees in science or engineering. I had the good fortune of being a part-time instructor all during my years at Bettis. In addition to teaching part-time at BRES, I also taught for several years at the Community College of Allegheny County. I was engaged as a part-time evening instructor teaching courses in physics and engineering. Teaching was an extremely enjoyable experience all through my professional career. I feel very fortunate to have been able to make this a part of my professional career.

All during this time Bettis management encouraged its employees to submit Patent Disclosures. It made the Laboratory look good to the Westinghouse Corporate management to have many Patent Disclosures. At the same time they took a very different view of publishing technical results in Technical Journals outside the lab.

However, I lived in the academic world for 5-years as a graduate student at Penn State University and another 3-years as a post-Doc at Princeton University. I fully understood the meaning of "publish or perish." At the Westinghouse-Bettis Atomic Power laboratory, those words took on a different meaning. If you try to publish, you might perish. For security reasons Naval Reactors, our customer to whom we owed our livelihood, was not enthusiastic about passing on research information gathered at its laboratory. Publishing outside the laboratory was not an easy task. However, I very strongly believed it was important to document the research and to leave to future generations that which had been discovered or learned. Publishing my research efforts became a priority in my work habits. It took considerable perseverance and initiative on my part to get the results of my research and development efforts published in various outside scientific journals. Copies of all my outside publications are compiled in a separate book. The titles of all my external publications appear in Appendix D. A list of my Patent Disclosures is contained in Appendix E.

A couple of years later Mike Natelson took over as manager of our department. He suggested I look into using neutron radiography as a means of studying fluid flow. That set me off into another area, almost 180 degrees from what I was doing in my welding activities. However, it put me right back home in the area of experimental nuclear physics. I quickly became an expert in this subject and found myself publishing numerous technical papers in the field of neutron radiography (Appendix D). After presenting my final research effort at the World Conference on Neutron Radiography in Switzerland in 1998 it was time to retire. That became official on February 1, 1999. As it turned out, I didn't live as a peasant among the kings but more like a king among the peasants. Fortunately, the peasants at the Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory were more like princes. The caliber of technical competence far exceeded that of the average industrial laboratory.

H. Post-Retirement

So what has life after retirement been like? With retirement, I have had more time to devote to a subject dear to my heart, my family roots. Much of the genealogy information that I have gathered for the past 50 years is finally being put on paper and passed on to my children, grandchildren and other family members. You are currently reading the first publication detailing my effort, A Road Well Traveled – Family History and Genealogy, Part I. Part II of this book is currently being compiled. The third book, Beyond the Road, provides detailed information about the Podwoloczyska Society and contains over three dozen photographs of family gravestones in the Podwoloczyska Society's burial grounds at Beth David Cemetery, in Elmont, New York.

Very soon after retirement, I started bicycling with my neighbor Bob Burack who had retired several years earlier. Later, Barry Tunick joined the group. Then it was Jack Murphy, Irv Selsley and Howard Lang. I currently send out a weekly e-mail to about 19 addresses inviting them to join me in a 20-mile bike ride along the wonderful bike trails that exist in the Pittsburgh and surrounding areas. When the weather gets cold and the bike path is covered with snow in December, the weekly e-mail is still sent. The invitation is to hike in place of cycling. A group of 8-10 hearty souls show up. Who would want to pass up the wonderful lunch that always follows the physical exercise?

Except for a few miles scattered miles one can start on the bike trail in downtown Pittsburgh and cycle traffic-free to Washington DC. That is a total of 274 miles. Except for 60-miles between Hancock and Harpers Ferry in Maryland and 15 miles between Cumberland and Frostburg in Maryland, I can proudly say I have been on almost every inch of the remaining trail. This has been piecemeal and over many years. I have foolishly biked and camped solo along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Towpath in Maryland and camped with friends along the Great Allegheny Passage in Ohio, Pennsylvania. In May 2010, I convinced four of my cousins, Mark Glick, Jessica Brooks, Diane Silver and Mark Silver to join me in the 42 mile New York City 5-Boro Bike Tour. Not only was it a wonderful experience biking through the city, but a great opportunity to spend precious time with my family. In addition, I introduced my cousin Mark Glick to the biking world and he has flourished. Later in the year he completed a weeklong 300-mile bike trip in Israel. That was an accomplishment to be proud of.

What else is there to do? Pittsburgh is fortunate to have a multitude of colleges and universities to help fill the desire for knowledge. There is always a lecture to attend. We tried taking courses at the schools but found that being away too often and with the days filled with other activities, enrollment never seemed to work.

Our small local library in Pleasant Hills is more than just a library. It is a community center. We attend a monthly meeting of a "conversation group" as well as participate in their book discussion meetings. Joan attends bi-monthly meetings with the library's "writers group."

Beth Israel Center (BIC) is an important and time consuming part of our daily activities. I have served, on and off, as chairman of the Religious Affairs committee for more than 30 years. After 10 years of lying dormant, I reinstituted the BIC Men's Club and served as President for the past two years. Joan currently is a co-President of the BIC Sisterhood. We are deeply committed to Beth Israel and it is a very time-consuming activity.

Responding to a chance meeting with a friend who suggested that Joan look into volunteering at the Senator H. J. Heinz History Center, both Joan and I have found a second home. It is now almost ten years that we have been docents at the history museum. It has opened up a new field of interest and both of us have thoroughly enjoyed being involved with this activity.

Joan has been active for many years with the Southwestern Pennsylvania Partnership for Aging (SWPPA), a non-profit organization advocating for well being for older adults. When she served as their Treasurer in 2000, she involved me with upgrading SWPPA's financial system. It took a couple of years of effort but we finally moved SWPPA from the dark ages and instituted a computer based financial record keeping system. Little did I know then, that I would have to maintain the system for the next 6-years, acting as SWPPA's bookkeeper. In 2001, Joan and I created within SWPPA the Morris and Esther Glickstein Endowment Fund. Over the next several years we sponsored several lecture series for healthcare professionals and the public, bringing in renowned experts from across the country to speak on various topics related to the field of aging. In 2004, we were presented with an engraved glass bowl thanking us for our service to the organization. As indicated earlier, in 2010, SWPPA selected Joan as the recipient of the prestigious Charles W. Pruitt Jr. Award of Excellence. We were extremely proud, overwhelmed and elated.

As a member of the Westinghouse - Service Uniting Retired Employees (SURE) group, I attend their monthly financial roundtable meetings. In addition, I act as the SURE coordinator for both the Heinz History Center as well as for SWPPA. There are so many retiree groups from the Bettis Laboratory that meet for a "get together," that one needs to be invested in a good stock just to pay for all the lunches. So, what does one do after retirement? Seniors love to eat!

The usual comment that we hear from people is that being retired now provides time for travel. However, travel has always been on our agenda. Joan's business activity and my work gave us ample opportunity to see various parts of this magnificent country over the past fifty years. However, that has not stopped us from furthering our travel experience. Soon after retirement we visited China. In 2010 it was Ireland and in 2011 it will be Russia. In between, we took all of our family on two Disney cruises and we almost always travel with Howard and Carol Lang for one week in the summer. We did a Panama Canal cruise with them, but our other excursions have mostly been in the states; to the Badlands National Park in South Dakota, a car trip along the coastline of Oregon, a visit to the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tennessee, to Little Rock in Arkansas as well as to the small town of Akron, Ohio. We can't leave out Joan's one week getaways every winter traveling with Fran Cohen, Maxine Horvitz and Vera Green. Those trips have taken them to Cabo San Lucas Mexico, Chicago IL, Charlotte SC and in 2011 on a cruise in the Caribbean. So yes, travel has been fun.

You also need to remember that our family is not in Pittsburgh and visiting family has always been a high priority. With Steve in Columbus Ohio, Barbara in Reston Virginia, Karen in Abingdon Maryland and Cathy in Stamford Connecticut, it is not often that you find us home in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

So what has life after retirement been like? Busy!

VI. Cherished times and memories are recalled

Now that my current life's history has been chronicled, it would be negligent on my part if I didn't share with my readers some of the most cherished memories of these past 70+ years. Actually, I am having a difficult time recalling what happened; it was just yesterday that I was living on Vermont Street in Brooklyn. How quickly the last seven decades have gone by. Again I will put these events in chronological order without trying to sort them in order of what has been "most cherished."

I still have a vivid picture in my mind of my kicking the teacher in the leg and then running out of my first grade classroom because I didn't see my mother standing outside the classroom door.

I wish I had a picture of my 3-year old sister Cynthia sitting inside the packing box of my black scooter. She loved racing down Remsen Avenue and other nearby streets.

Building a Soap Box Derby racing car with my cousin Howie Lenchitz was a great thrill. Arriving at the finish line with the rear wheels first was a bit scary.

Taking the bus and train to get to high school and then college was always a chore. It was especially frustrating watching the filled buses pass by on the cold winter morning with ice and snow on the ground.

We would spend hours shoveling the snow off the basketball court in the schoolyard of PS 219 so that we could play ball in the middle of the winter. Nothing stopped us.

Joan will always remember our first date and recall the story of how I watched her trying to get up after falling in the snow during our ski outing. She never understood that one of the first things I was told when I took ski lessons was that one must learn to get up without help after falling.

Joan and I moved into our new apartment on Allen Street in State College. It had just been built. It was modern, beautiful and the best State College had to offer.

Somewhere in one of our picture albums there is a picture taken of the first fish Steven caught at age 5-months. Mort Levy and I dragged Steve and his carriage through the woods so we could get to that great spot for fishing along the stream. The fish was huge, all of 4 inches long.

I also have 8-mm movies, (later put on videotape) of pushing Steve in a sled as I skated for miles on frozen Lake Carnegie outside our Junior Faculty housing in Princeton, NJ.

Saturday mornings were always special when we lived on Bruceton Road. Joan and I would leave the 4-kids with one of the Koechel teenagers as their baby sitter. That allowed us to escape for the $1.00 breakfast at the South Hills Village indoor mall. I thought it was heaven without our wonderful four little children tugging at our feet.

Camping during the weekend visits to the State Parks in Pennsylvania and Maryland were terrific. The camping adventures were especially exciting at the Disneyland campsite, the Florida Keys and along the side of the lake near Cape Canaveral.

The science presentations I made to the second graders at our local elementary school provided a great deal of enjoyment. The following is a 2-page letter of from one of the youngsters.

April 29, 1968

Dear Dr. Glickstein,

Thank you ~~at~~ for coming

The experiments were very good.

I know you will ask
this: Did everyone like it?
yes

Will you come again?

I learned a lot.

Here is a riddle what has black hair? yes

One of the many letters received from the students after the science demonstration.

There are 18 stories in readers disc. We have one poem it is April

You said that you will come in the afternoon

The class loved alot
about air

Are new book

We have is Foolish and

Your son

Steve

It was always quite a chore getting Steve and Barbara off to Penn State. The station wagon was packed to the sky with little room for anyone inside. Here are some of Barbara's thoughts on this momentous occasion. This is one of those favorite letters that makes one proud to be a father.

My Father's Daughter

Daddy's girl
is packed and ready to go, with her whole life stuffed into one trunk,
three cardboard boxes,
and a biodegradable shopping bag.

Her hair is unbrushed,
her shoelaces untied,
but Daddy doesn't mind,
she's still his little girl.
Tomorrow...
she'll be all alone in an empty dorm

hanging posters on the walls and eating dry Fruit Loops.
But today

Daddy's girl
sits on a trunk
amidst cardboard boxes with a Raggedy Ann doll
in her arms.

We were always busy car-pooling the kids to the usual activities that consisted of baseball, piano lessons, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Boy Scouts, Hebrew and Sunday school, etc., etc., etc. How did we manage to get Karen to the Jewish Home for the Aged? I need to ask her how many hours it took to acquire the Certificate shown below.

What a wonderful moment it was to watch Joan receive her Ph.D. degree from the University of Pittsburgh. I was the proudest one there. Unfortunately, the only other members of the family present were Barbara, Karen and Cathy. It was the middle of the week and I believe Steve was at Penn State and Joan's mom was in Florida. Joan's dad would have been extremely proud. He passed away a year earlier.

How can anyone forget that wonderful vacation when my dad took the entire family to Israel! It included Cynthia, Arthur, Pamela and Robin, Stan, Joan, Cathy, Karen, Barbara, Steven and Sherri. Israel was virtually empty of tourists during this 10-day period. It was a few months prior to "Operation Desert Storm". The United States Persian Gulf war to disperse Iraq from Kuwait began in January 1991. Weeks later, Israel was being bombed with scud missiles launched from Iraq. While we were all a bit apprehensive about going, my dad wouldn't think of canceling the trip. What a great trip it was.

A few years later in December 1993 my Dad again took the entire family for a Florida vacation. It was freezing but we all had a great time. See what Cathy had to say in the following poem she had written to her grandfather.

Grandpa Morris you are so dear
Whether you're far-or whether you're near.
It was so nice being with you
Thank you, thank you for all that you do.

Our Florida trip
What more can we say
We'll cherish the memory
Throughout every day.
From Pgh. to Greenwich
To the Royal Biscane
We drove and we flew
Just to be with you.
Your signature has fulfilled
All of our wishes
For without it who knows
We'd be doing the dishes.
Cheese, crackers, piña colada galore
We ate and we drank
Till we could endure no more.
The sun and the sand
Were fun for us all
Especially the tans
We wish would last till the fall.
We'll never forget
This wonderful time
We owe it all to you
Whom we're giving this rhyme.
It's you Grandpa Morris
You're the best there could be
With love from us all
But especially from me.

Love,
Cathy

After Cathy graduated from Hofstra University she returned home. She enrolled in an intensive summer program at Duquesne University to obtain a certificate as a Paralegal. She then spent several years working for the District Attorney's Office in New York as a paralegal. The urge to spend time in Israel came about after she tired of the DA scene. Fortunately, she received an Israel Scholarship that helped her spend the next year living in Israel. That gave us the excuse to return to Israel for our third visit. She will have to write of her escapades in Israel in her autobiography.

Cathy later changed her career path and became a Meeting Planner. There are some perks to that job. Joan and I will never forget having Cathy set us up in a luxurious suite at the Renaissance Hotel in Palm Desert, California, all gratis. She provided us with a car and took us for a weekend in Las Vegas. In February 2005, she again wined and dined us for a week in Puerto Rico.

It was always assumed that our children would continue to college after graduating high school, although I don't believe I ever insisted on that path. Steven went off to Penn State. Two years later Barbara followed her brother and off she went to Penn State. When Cathy graduated from Hillel High School she too took off to college, however this time the trip was to Hofstra University. After each spent 4-years in college we all attended their graduations with joy in our hearts. Now Karen was a different story. I am not sure of the details but I think it was CCAC first. After that it was the Pittsburgh Beauty Academy where she became a hair stylist. Following approximately two years of living in Ft Meyers, Fl she returned home to try her hand at college again. After two years at CCAC she transferred to Hofstra University and completed her degree in education. Now that graduation was truly a memorable moment!

It took a long time to get the entire family together. Finally, for Thanksgiving 2001 we were able to gather everyone in one place for a Thanksgiving weekend in Pittsburgh. A little crowded but all fifteen of us managed to find a bed and enjoy the weekend. So what if the showers were a bit chilly. We had a wonderful time. From looking at the picture below the weatherman cooperated extremely well.

I suspect it wasn't until February 2007 before we were all in one place again. This time we celebrated Elana's Bat Mitzvah in Herndon, Virginia. We had a bit more room as we all stayed at the Hyatt Hotel for the elaborate weekend of celebration. Needless to say, it was an unforgettable emotional experience for the grandparents.

On July 12, 2007 we celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary in Salt Lake City, Utah. It was there that we attended the 27th International conference on Jewish Genealogy. It was a week of fun, relaxation and an educational experience attending lectures and meeting people involved in genealogy. It helped promote more enthusiasm about continuing on this remarkable adventure into my family history.

Later that year we again celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary by taking the entire gang for a one week Disney cruise. Wow, twice in one year, getting everyone together for a group picture. Fifty years, it is hard to believe!

The 2007 trip was such a success that the family decided we needed to do it again in December 2009. Here we all are in the same positions as before. Cathy was smart enough to have a copy of our 2007 picture with her. The photograph was taken on the patio of our suite. No one aged except the grandchildren.

VII. Conclusion

The previous chapters detail where I was born and where I have lived. In addition, it provides some understanding as to how I got to where I am today. Retirement from my professional work has provided me the opportunity to document all these details and insights. It is my hope that there will be some members of the present and future generations who will find this information of some interest. I only wish I had spent more time with my grandparents and parents in encouraging them to provide more details of their past histories. It was a stroke of genius on my part to have spoken to and documented a little of Pop and Riva's past history during that one evening sometime in the early 1960's.

Joan and I have both been blessed with a wonderful life. Many persons looking back on their lives have been known to say, I wish I would have done this instead of that. For me, I can't imagine making any changes in what I have done over these past 75 years. It has been a road well traveled and hopefully I will have many more years to enjoy the future roads that I will drive on.

Retirement has been wonderful. Joan and I have both enjoyed the freedom to do what we want, go where we want, when we want. Our children are wonderful, their chosen mates could not have been better. The grandchildren, well that will take writing another book. All we need is continued health. Regarding health, I short summary of my medical history is included in Appendix F.

It is my hope that this book will encourage other members of my extended family to record and share their past history and family stories. Some have already done that. Appendix G includes writings by several people who agreed to share their family experiences. I continually look for stories from the roads others have traveled. I will include these tales in an updated version of our treasured family history.

As a prelude to Part II of this book, which remains to be compiled in a suitable book format, I have included family trees of the Lenchitz, Barshefsky/Glickstein and Parness descendants. These descendant trees can be found in Appendix H.

Please send updated information and stories to Stanley Glickstein, 321 Challen Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15236.

Below are the records that match the name you entered. If you don't find the passenger you seek on this group of records don't give up! First, try adding more information such as year of arrival, ethnicity or age on arrival by clicking the appropriate edit box in the blue area on the left side of the screen. Also, many passengers' names were misspelled. You can also try clicking on the "close matches" or "alternate spellings" boxes at the top of the page to ask the system to search for spellings that have similar sound values. The Sermons of Ephraim Luntshitz

THE SERMONS OF EPHRAIM LUNTSHITZ

ISRAEL BETTAN, Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio

I

EPHRAIM LUNTSHITZ, whose full name was Solomon Ephraim ben Aaron, was born in Lenczyca,¹ Poland, about the middle of the sixteenth century. While the exact date of his birth is unknown, it is safe to place it in the fifth decade of the century, since he died in 1619, March 3,² less than a year after he had been relieved of his onerous duties as Chief Rabbi of Prague, presumably on account of his advanced years. His original name Ephraim received the addition of Solomon as late as 1601, when, during a severe illness, in conformity with the prevailing practice of the day, a modification in his name was resorted to as a means of breaking the spell that held him in its grip.³ His childhood was spent in his native town, where, either at the hands of his father who was a man of some learning, or at some local Hebrew school, he received the customary training in the elements, completing which he was sent to Lublin to enrol in the Yeshiva presided over by the celebrated Talmudist Solomon Luria, to whose ים של שלמה, while yet in manuscript, Luntshitz somewhat later referred with much admiration and reverence.⁴ It was at Lublin that his great homiletical powers began to unfold; for a short while thereafter, still in his early youth, we find him in Yaroslav engaged, amidst dire poverty, in putting into proper form the first fruits of his homiletical efforts, his עיד נבחים.⁵ At first, he informs us, out of deference to the older men in the pulpit, he abstained from preaching much in public, contenting himself with the steady accumulation of material for future publications.⁵ Later, however, when somewhat older in years and richer in experience, he seems to have lost all of his shyness and most of his esteem for his older colleagues. For on more than one occasion, when preaching before large assemblages, at Yaroslav, at Lemberg, and especially at Lublin, during the Conferences of the Council of the Three Lands, coincident with the great fairs, he assailed with much vigor and candor the laxity, the spiritual deadness, of rabbis and laymen alike, often receiving little more for his pains than the caustic criticism and active enmity of the self-complacent crowds who thronged to hear him.⁶ "In my later years, yielding to the importunities of men of prominence, I held forth at Lublin, especially during the great fairs, where Jewish leaders as well as large masses of the people foregathered. There I used to express myself quite freely touching the shortcomings of the rabbis as well as of the laity, undeterred by any consideration or fear. This boldness, naturally enough, created for me numerous enemies who heaped slander upon my name and otherwise persecuted me. . . . Of course, I could have well avoided all this wrath and uproar were I but willing to be more restrained in my utterances, or were I more chary of my personal honor. But I had long resolved to place the honor of God above that of my own."⁷ The leaders of the Council of the Three Lands,⁸ however, recognized his true worth and encouraged his efforts. They assisted him in the publication of some of his works,⁹ and established him as the head of the Lemberg Yeshiva, where he remained for many years, until, in 1604,¹⁰ he was called to Prague to assume the office of Chief Rabbi, in which capacity he served for fourteen years.

Of his homiletical output, we possess six works, four of which *

Tombstone of Shlomo Ephraim ben Aaron Luntshitz, died 7th Iyar 5379 (Corresponding to April 21, 1619)

My Aunt Sylvia Lenchitz provided me with the picture of the tombstone of Shlomo Ephraim Luntshitz shown below. Sometime in the 1980's she and Charlie were visiting with their son Bernie. He was a resident in a hospital in Cincinnati, OH. Having some free time they stopped at the library of the Hebrew Union College. They met a librarian who came from Brooklyn, NY and had attended the same high school as Charlie. After a friendly conversation they exchanged names. It was then that she said she knew a descendant of the Lenchitz clan named Peter Lynch. He lived in New Jersey near the George Washington Bridge. When they returned home to New Jersey they called Peter Lynch and visited him at his apartment. The apartment was filled with books all thrown about. Peter was somewhat unusual. He indicated that he had taken the photo of the tombstone of Shlomo Ephraim while he was in Austria and had the inscription translated. He provided Sylvia with the negative and translation of the inscription. Sylvia made copies of the negative and the results are shown below. Because Peter appeared a bit eccentric, Charlie and Sylvia never spoke with him again. The notes on the next page indicate that Shlomo Ephraim died on the 7th day of Adar II, 1619, which corresponds to February 21, 1619. However, when I checked the Hebrew calendar for the year 1619 there is no Adar II. That is because the notes should have indicated the 7th day of Iyar 5379 which corresponds to April 21, 1619.

On a trip to Prague, the capital of the Czech Republic in the summer of 2006, Joan and I strolled through the Jewish Cemetery in the Jewish section of Prague. It was a hot, muggy day and the hundreds upon hundreds of tombstones were scattered and piled upon one another inside a closed off area of the cemetery. We very quickly walked through the area stopping near several tombstones and reading the inscriptions. The meant very little to us. Upon arriving home in the USA, I opened the small brochure that I picked up at the cemetery and read through the text. One of the highlights of the cemetery was several tombstones that were noted as important sites. One of those bore the name Shlomo Ephraim Luntshitz. I missed it!

Translation of inscription of tombstone of Shlomo Ephraim

- Adar II, 1619 is incorrectly recorded. The correct date should be Iyar 5379 as explained on previous page.

The second page of the printout that I was given was difficult to scan and very hard to read. I typed what was written to the best that I could decipher.

The Charles W. Pruitt Jr. 2010 Award of Excellence

I would like to nominate Dr. Joan K. Glickstein for this year's Charles W. Pruitt Jr. Award of Excellence.

The following provides some background information related solely to Joan's contribution to the field of aging which has had regional, state and national impact.

For the past 30 years Joan has devoted her professional career to improving the welfare of those in the aging population. While her first 20+ professional years were spent working as a speech pathologist her interest in gerontology was ignited when she was asked to serve as a delegate for the State of Pennsylvania to the 1980 White House Conference on Aging. As a result of her active and outspoken participation at this Conference important steps were taken to recognize and support the needs of the Alzheimer patient on the national level. At that time Alzheimer's disease was still in its infancy, not fully comprehended by health care professionals.

She very quickly became a leading advocate in the Western Pennsylvania area for the local Alzheimer organization. She served for many years as a volunteer family counselor organizing group help sessions that met on a monthly basis. She provided family support and counseling at a professional level by establishing Long Term Care Consultants, a unique service designed to serve the needs of families and groups concerned with victims of Alzheimer's disease and other types of senile dementia.

During this period of her career Joan spoke at numerous professional meetings, universities, organizations and interest groups on "Alzheimer's Disease – Senility: Facts and Fiction." Her message was subsequently delivered to more than 50 organizations throughout the country. In 1988 her groundbreaking book entitled, "Program of Functional Communication Skills for Activities of Daily Living: Therapeutic Interventions in Alzheimer's Disease" became a best seller for Aspen Publications. Aspen is one of the largest publishers in the field of health care. The first edition was quickly sold out and an updated second edition of the book was published several years later.

From 1987 to 2000 Joan served as the Editor-in-Chief of the monthly newsletter "Focus on Geriatric Care and Rehabilitation." During these 13-years her 8-page monthly articles provided new and updated information to all types of health care professionals with an interest in geriatrics. She was awarded the National Excellence in Newsletter Journalism. This award was given to her by The Newsletter Associations in Best Instructional Reporting. Today, she has served on the Board of Directors for the prestigious nationally published "Alzheimer's Care Quarterly."

Her sustained interest in providing the best care for the aging population moved her toward establishing Glickstein-Neustadt Inc., a company devoted to providing and improving care for the elderly. She co-authored the groundbreaking text entitled, "A Functional Maintenance Therapy System, Reimbursable Geriatric Service Delivery." After publication of this book she lectured widely throughout the country helping to initiate the principles outlined in the text into practical application. Today, it still provides basic guidance to setting up a Functional Maintenance Delivery System to Rehabilitation Services in many institutions throughout the country.

During the 1990's Joan served for several years as President of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Speech Language Hearing Association. In 1997 she was awarded "Honors of the Association" by the Southwestern Pennsylvania Speech Language and Hearing Association. For her many years of service Joan has been awarded a Life Membership in the Pennsylvania Speech Language and Hearing Association.

She literally battled for years with the American Speech Language Hearing Association to establish a "Special Interest Group in Gerontology" for ASHA members. This was the first such group within this large national organization that would be solely devoted to problems of the aged. She became the group's first president. Within several years, membership in the "Special Interest Group in Gerontology" rose to almost a 1000 members proving that her vision of just such an organization was vitally needed within the ASHA community. It became and is today a prominent special interest group among the other 15 or so active special interest groups within ASHA. As an active member of ASHA she fulfilled the requirements and was awarded a Certificate of Clinical Competence in Speech Pathology.

Joan was an active member in the Gerontology Society of America participating and contributing to many of its committees and study groups. Today, she continues in her professional career as an active consultant to nursing homes and organizations that are in need of guidance and support in dealing with issues of concern to the elderly population.

Dr. Glickstein's involvement and deep personal concern for the Southwestern Pennsylvania Partnership for Aging is well known to all involved with this organization. It was through her personal efforts that SWPPA's first permanent endowment fund was initiated, The Esther and Morris Glickstein Memorial Fund. In addition to the programs that this fund has helped to contribute to, the fund was intended to act as a prototype for others contributors to come forward and support SWPPA's vision. Joan has served on the Board of Directors of SWPPA as well as various committees for untold years. She continues as an active and devoted partner with SWPPA to help serve the aging population.

For these reasons and more if needed, I believe Dr. Joan Glickstein should be nominated and strongly considered for receiving the prestigious Charles W. Pruitt 2010 Award of Excellence.

Sincerely,

Stanley S. Glickstein

Additional Biographical Data:

B.S. Brooklyn College, 1955 Majored in Speech Pathology and Education

M.S. Pennsylvania State University, 1957 Majored in Speech Pathology

Ph.D. University of Pittsburgh, 1979 Majored in Speech Pathology

1957-1961 Dr. Glickstein began her professional career in 1957 as a Speech Pathologist for the Centre County School system. She provided speech therapy to needy students while working in the basements and boiler rooms of many schools located in the rural areas of Centre County.

1961-1964 While living in Princeton and raising a family Joan worked part-time for the Easter Seal Society as a Speech Pathologist.

1970-1980 After moving to Pittsburgh Joan centered her interest on raising her 4-children. However, Joan continued with her professional career working part-time as a Speech Pathologist for St. Margaret Hospital in their Speech and Hearing Department. At the same time she managed to take graduate courses at the University of Pittsburgh. Twenty-two years after receiving her M.S. degree Joan completed her requirements for her Ph.D. This degree was awarded to Joan by the University of Pittsburgh in 1979. That's perseverance, a quality she has, that is well known to all her friends and colleagues.

- * Having lived in the academic world for 5-years as a graduate student at Penn State University and another 3-years as a post-doc at Princeton University, I fully understood the meaning of “publish or perish.” When I arrived at the Westinghouse-Bettis Atomic Power laboratory, those words took on a different meaning. If you try to publish, you might perish. For security reasons, Naval Reactors, our customer to whom we owed our livelihood was not enthusiastic about passing on research information gathered at its laboratory. Publishing outside the laboratory was not an easy task. In my early years it typically took anywhere between 6 to 9 months to get approval to submit a technical paper for presentation or publication. In later years it was streamlined to 2 to 4 months. Approval would usually be received just days before a deadline was due or even just hours before a paper was to be presented at a technical society meeting. However, I very strongly believed it was important to document our research and to leave to future generations that which we have discovered or learned. Publishing my research efforts became a priority in my work habits. It took considerable perseverance and initiative on my part to get the results of my research and development efforts published in various outside scientific journals. Copies of my outside publications are compiled in a separate book, entitled, Publications, S. S. Glickstein 1960 - 1999.

Patent Disclosures - Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory

Stanley S. Glickstein

The Bettis Laboratory strongly encouraged its employees to submit Patent Disclosures. A Patent Committee reviewed these disclosures. If the Committee determined that the disclosure had merit, it would be sent to the Westinghouse Corporation for additional review. In addition, you would automatically receive a monetary reward of between $250-$500. This was an incentive to think of creative ideas that had the potential for commercial use. If the Corporation filed for a Patent and a patent was issued, you would receive an additional $1.00. I received several awards, but never had a patent issued. The following Patent Disclosures were submitted:

Date	Patent No.	Title
1977	AP 77-8	Corrective Positioning of the Welding Arc Through the Use of an Electromagnetic Probe
1979	AP 79-23	Nondestructive Determination of Hydrogen Content in Zircaloy
1980	AP 80-5	Improved Thermoluminescence Detector Calibration Technique for Neutron Dosimetry Monitoring
1982*	AP 82-65	TV Monitoring of Arc Welding Using a Fiber Optic Laser Light Source
1983	AP 83-11	A Device for Automatic Positioning of the Welding Electrode
1983	AP 83-12	Laser Arc Starter for Welding Arc Initiation
1985*	AP 86-66	Interactive Computer Based Voice Communications System For Welding Operations
1988	AP 88-042	Continuous Picture Storage of a Security Area with a Personal Computer
1988	AP 88-056	Laser Welding of Tubing Using an Optical Fiber delivery System
1989*	AP 89-124	Void Fraction Measurements Using Neutron Radiography
1993*	AP 93-086	Liquid Film Thickness Gage
1995	AP 95-033	Infrared Detection of Critical Heat Flux (CHF) in Thermal-Hydraulic Test Sections

Medical History –Stanley S. Glickstein

With rapid advances in medical technology it has become important to provide future generations with family medical background. For this reason I am including some highlights of my medical history.

Abt.	1938	scarlet fever
Abt.	1945-1950	asthma (took allergy shots for dust)
Abt.	1953	appendix operation
	1962	herniated disc operation (lower back)
Abt.	1968	tennis elbow operation
Abt.	1978-1980	took allergy shots (was getting teary eyes in the fall season)
	1998	neurological exam concluded that I had a “habit spasm due to an underlying anxiety disorder.” No other reason could be found for the twitching of “nose” that I have had from my early teens. It had gotten very bad in 1998. This resulted in undergoing the neurological exam.
	2001	cataract operation in both eyes
	2002	tetrofosmin scan (injected radioactive element) implied small myocardial infarct in the basal portion of the inferior wall without evidence of ischemia. Stress test was negative.
	2002	operated on for detached retina in right eye.
	2003	operated on right eye to raise eyelid to improve vision.
	2010	myocardial perfusion imaging was performed similar to 2002 tests but with updated imaging machine. There was no evidence of myocardial infarct. Based on this study, the patient is considered to be at a low risk for future ischemic cardiac events. This is in contradiction with prior testing. Testing was done by same physician that said this was newer machinery.

At the time of this update in 2010, I am in excellent health. I am taking blood pressure medication, Lisinopril for a slightly high blood pressure, Prilosec for gerd, an 81-mg aspirin upon doctor’s recommendation, Avodart for an enlarged prostate and a 1000 micrograms Vitamin B-12 tablet for peripheral neuropathy in my legs.

Family Members' Personal Writings

A Man Named Morris by Caroline Frankel (A testimonial of my gratitude)

(Written for the birthday of Morris Glickstein, age 88)

My happiest and brightest day in my life was when a man named Morris came into our family.

When I was a young girl he would help me with my homework, bought me my first fur jacket (at Gimbels, he loved that department store) and always ready to call the Doctor when I had my "famous belly aches" (money was very scarce then).

He joked with my mother, gave my mother facials once a week, and loved every bit of my mother's cooking (that was something). He tolerated a very emotionally sick sister (Bernice - Bessie).

When I got married, he allowed me to live in his home; it really gave me a good chance to save money.

Always there to share everything with the family.

He went through a very nervous, painful and nerve-racking operation, and still had the sweetest disposition and wonderful sense of humor.

He's caring for a sister (his wife) that Doctors gave up on.

Like his namesake Moses in the Bible, his deeds should be compared with Moses and may he live as long as Moses did.

He is still always cheerful with wonderful salutations
Good morning, Good afternoon, Good evening

And his famous endearing words-
"Sweetheart & Sissy"

My brother-in-law, a man named Morris.

Love forever,
Your sis-in-law
Caroline/Carrie Frankel

Notes from Cousin Rochel Lenchitz Hartstein

Dear Cousins:

You said that we might write until our hearts were content. I would like to share what is in my heart with all my relatives. We are all aware, as human beings that we shall live here in this world for 120 years and then pass on to the afterlife that our Creator has in store for us.

Throughout history, man has engaged in various searches. He has engaged to improve his environment. He has searched for ways to increase his productivity. He has searched for ways to overcome disease. In a more sublime attitude, man has searched for G-D.

The driving force in our lives is our Soul's yearning to fulfill its purpose! Our Soul has awesome uplifting powers. It beams our message to us, urging us onward and upward. We should never ignore the yearning of our Soul.

Our goal in this life is to train and elevate ourselves to perfection and reveal G-D to the world by self-example as a Torah Jew. Remember that as a Jew, G-D chose us to be a pillar of light to all people! We should not try to get rid of this yoke. We must be proud of the great challenge that was given to us. We have a G-D given purpose to find our way back to His place. The Torah was given to us as a guidebook for our journey back to HIM.

We human beings have free will and through our choices we can elevate or degrade ourselves. To elevate ourselves where we start our climb is not what matters. All that matters is that we start and that we keep climbing. Through this project of our family tree, may we learn of "roots" that we can be ever proud of and hope to continue our future generations on the Torah foundation on which our Founding Fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob built our Jewish nation.

With love,

Cousin Rachel Bracha (Lenchitz) Hartstein

Our Great Grandfather of 12 Generations Ago by Rochel Lenchitz Hartstein

The renowned Torah Sage whose commentaries are studied by Torah scholars throughout the world was our great grandfather Rabbi Shlomo Ephraim from the city of Luntchitz (that is how we got our name). He was only 12 generations ago. His Torah explanations appear under the pen name, “Kli Yakar” (open a Chumsh and you will see).

He lived over 400 years ago in the 1500’s. In those days, landlords owned the land. People paid rent for their farm or inn. Many times the landlords were rich drunkards who squeezed out higher taxes from their tenants. As an only child, Rav Shlomo Ephraim was born to his pious parents through a blessing from a devout Chasidic sage named Reb Lev, a student of the famous Rabbi Baal Shem Tov (who incidentally is of my mother’s descendant – from the Sack family).

The landlord (known as the Poritz) killed Rav Shlomo Ephraim’s father, drove away his mother and kidnapped the young baby Shlomo Ephraim. Before his Bar Mitzvah age, he had constant dreams of his real father telling him, he was a Jew. The landowner who claims to be his father is the one who murdered his real father. After many nightmares, Rabbi Lev, who prayed for his birth recaptured him and Rav Shlomo Ephraim was brought up as a faithful Jew and grew in his studies and became a Torah scholar. We come from this great person. The generations are the following:

Aaron
Shlomo Ephraim	1500’s great sage
Tzvi Hirsh	1500’s
Yakov Shmuel	1600’s
Avraham Yitzchok	1700’s he authored commentary books where these names are recorded
Yonah	1700’s
Avraham Yitznok	1800’s
Shlomo	1800’s
Tzvi Hirsh	1880’s our grandfather, Harry, spouse Bryna
Shaul	1909 my father, Sol

A Clear Picture of Our Jewish Roots by Rochel Lenchitz Hartstein

It is now the year 5755. The Jewish people count from the first person created by Hashem.

Adam	0-930 years
Sheth	130-1042
Enosh	235-1140
Kenan	325-1235
Mehalel	395-1290
Yered	410-1422
Enoch	622-987
Methuselah	687-1656
Lemeth	874-1651
Noah	1056-2006

The earth was filled with crime. Hashem destroyed all flesh with the great Flood (1656). Only Noah and his family were worthy to be saved and two of each type of animal. Noah had three married sons. They were:

Shem	Abraham comes from Shem
Cham	Colored people come from Cham
Yefes	Other gentiles come from Yefes

Abraham lived from 1948- 2123. The Arabs also came from Abraham, but they intermarried with Cham. Yitzok died 2228. Yakov died 2255. The Twelve tribes of Israel – Levi died 2332.

(Abraham was the first to proclaim and prove that Hashem is our Creator – Who is one and only in control of everything. He became the first Jew. All Jews believe in the One Hashem. Shouldn't we be proud of belonging to the Jewish nation?

Moses (Moshe) and the Jewish people received the Torah in the year 2448, when we promised to be faithful to Hashem. Roman rule over the land of Israel 3698-4215. Babylonian Jewry – Great sages call Tahnaïm and Amoraim – Geonim until 4798.

We live now in 5755 (1995)

The Al-Mighty has promised HIS faithful Jewish Nation that we shall again live in the Holy Land, Israel. And we shall return to HIM with great repentance. The Tshuva (repentance) Movement now is as great as ever. Please join in! We need you!

Cousin Rochel Brucha

My Dad: Rubin Lenchitz by Helen Lenchitz

So sorry this has taken a bit longer than I wanted it to. I saw my sister this past weekend and we had a great time sharing our memories about our father. She will be sending you some stories and here are a few brief notes about Ruby.

First, I must say that my father was the funniest man I have met to date in my life. He saw something funny about everything. As a child I grew up with my dad in the house. It was the only place I really wanted to be. I just gravitated to him. Although, thinking back, I don't believe he was really very good about keeping in touch with his family, his life revolved around his children. It didn't always make for a happy mother, but we certainly laughed a lot.

I remember one of his best and most repeated lines, mostly to my mother, was that he never wanted to die from a money ulcer. He didn't. He was a very content man until he got sick. Now that it has been over ten years since he died, the memories of his sick years are becoming dimmer and the memory of the man I want to remember my dad as, is stronger again.

My father made a joke out of almost everything and also was a showman. Don't get the wrong idea, my father wasn't perfect. He couldn't fix a thing. He would only guarantee a picture that he hung on the wall for a maximum of 24 hours. Usually it never lasted 24 hours. If he did do anything around the house by way of repair or renovation, he had to wear a hat. He had a hat and a costume for every occasion. One time, before Passover, having had a Kosher home, my mom wanted the kitchen cabinets painted. It would have been a simple thing if anyone had done it except my dad. That cabinet is still wet. Dishes still stick to it. He used a gallon of paint on one cabinet. He had more paint on him, all over his hands, his eyes and every exposed part of his body than the cabinet did, except his head. Fortunately, he was wearing his hat.

A little known fact about Ruby was that he was afraid of dogs. He would never admit it but it was so. I must have been about 12 when a really close friend's dad passed away. Living on the same block and the family having to sit shiva, my friend asked if we could dog sit. Of course we could, but my mom decided that the dog had to sleep with a leash attached to a radiator. That did not sit well with me. I carried on so long and hard enough after my father went to sleep, (which was early since he got up very early in the morning) that my mom took the dog off the leash. At 4:30 A.M. the screaming and cursing that went on in the house was unbelievable. All the lights went on. It seems that the dog "shit" in my dad's slipper and when he got up that's what he stepped into. I guess you know where the dog slept after that. Funny thing though, this story was one that made my dad laugh during his illness. If I ever repeated it to someone, he would look, and shake his head and a laugh would escape.

My father kept an old type Vaudeville hook in the closet. I have no idea where it came from. On Sunday nights during Ed Sullivan, especially if there was a tap dance group on, we would become the "Step Brothers." If we didn't dance well enough, or try hard enough, we would get the hook. Wanting to be around Ruby and doing so growing up, gave me the foundation for my love of sports, all sports: football and hockey as well as basketball and baseball. Dad was a great New York sports fan. He took me to the greatest football game ever played between the Giants and the Colts. It ended in a sudden death, overtime game. It was freezing. He kept feeding me tea with wine from a flask. I think I was 10 or 11 at the time. Keeping that in mind, when my brother moved and of course I was much older, my dad started calling me Phil when we talked sports. He used to offer me cigars, and he never drove when I was with him. He actually should have been a director, or a producer, because he saw everything as a show and he had the ability to make everyone want to be a part of it. He was contagious, in the best kind of way.

You know, I can go on and on and on. There are some stories that Eileen will be sharing with you in line with his dressing up and the production numbers we called home. What a man! I have also enclosed a copy of the Eulogy that Uncle Charlie wrote and read at my dad's funeral. I guess it will give you another perspective of a man from a brother's eyes.

Thank you for taking the time to do this and for allowing us all to contribute. You really are remarkable.

Your loving cousin,

Helen

My Dad: Rubin Lenchitz by Eileen Lenchitz

THE FUNERAL

As they say, "Living is for the living - live and let live." This is one story that will always remain and there are so many.

My mother told me this one about Dad - Her sister Blanche's husband had passed away suddenly and we all were prepared to attend the funeral of Uncle Barney. The hearse was the first car and Dad was driving right behind. In his car were Miriam, her parents and her widowed sister, Blanche. We drove and drove and all of a sudden my mother said to Dad, where is the hearse. He said, don't worry I'll find it. He drove and drove (you know how hard it is for men to ask for directions) Well, finally he pulled into the gas station to ask for directions to the cemetery and right behind him followed a procession of about 15 cars. To this day whenever there is a funeral, this memory always is first in my mind.

BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI

Twice a year, in the fall and in the spring as it goes, we either fall behind or spring forward.

Well, it was actually a ritual in our home where we all lined up with our little clocks. Dad had two clocks, (he woke at the crack of dawn, if not earlier), Ken had a clock, Eileen had a clock and Helen had a clock. We would all wear some kind of hat. Dad would lead the line to the tune of the Bridge on the River Kwai - da da da da da da da da. We would whistle in tune and wind our clocks and walk in a straight line from one end of the apartment to the other. Mom would sit there and laugh and we tried not to. To this day, whenever the clocks are reset, I always do it in tune to that melody and think of all the laughter that went on in those days in our house.

Salute a Veteran, Charles Lenchitz by Cory Cox

Salute A Veteran

Hi, I'm Cory Cox. In honor of Veterans' Day, I share with you an interview I conducted with my neighbor, Charlie Lenchitz, an 85-year-old World War II veteran.

Charlie was 24 years old when he was drafted into the Army. It was January of 1942, a month after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Because of Charlie's high IQ, they wanted to make him a pilot. However, his eyesight was not good enough. He was assigned to the Military Intelligence Division of the Army

During World War II, Charlie worked with British Intelligence to determine where to invade in enemy territory. He would review photos taken by airplanes and map out the invasion area. President Eisenhower chose to invade Normandy Beach. Charlie recalled how seasick he was when he crossed the English Channel. He also remembers how very cold it was in Germany. It was so cold; most of the soldiers couldn't eat or go to the bathroom. He remembers smoking a lot of cigarettes, probably trying to keep warm.

Charlie was fortunate enough not to have to shoot anyone. He did recall being assigned a BAR, a Browning automatic rifle, when Germany broke through the Belgium border.

After Europe, Charlie was assigned to the 8th Infantry Division as a Recon Officer. He was sent back to the U.S. and tried to determine where we could invade in Japan. Charlie stated, "We really couldn't see any openings, the mountains were sky high and the beaches were very narrow in Japan."

Charlie remained in the Army for 3 years and 11 months. Although he hasn't kept in touch with his friends from the Army lately, he does visit the Lyon's Veterans Hospital in Basking Ridge each week. I asked Charlie, "What could we do to honor Veterans?"

He said, "Continue honoring the veterans during assemblies and remembering them with cards and candies during the holidays."

I would like to thank Charlie and all the veterans for fighting for our country, some even sacrificing their lives for us. This is Cory Cox saluting all the veterans out there on Veterans' Day and everyday!

Some Memories – Caroline Frankel

7-30-1994

Dear Stanley,

Here are some of our memories:

In the thirties, Caroline (who was only 6 years old) would go to the train station and wait for her older sister (Esther) who was working for a paper company. Esther was a bookkeeper for the company. The boss was Mr. Mandler.

In the 1930's, Caroline would hang out in the candy store and call people to the telephone and get a tip. Not that many people had telephones at home (Hinsdale St.).

Morris bought me my first fur jacket at his favorite department store (Gimbels). 1940

When Cynthia was a small child, she would get angry at Caroline and try to hit her with a children's broom – 289 Remsen Ave.

Irving would take Cynthia for a walk and tell her to breathe deeply (cold winter air). That's how she grew up – 289 Remsen Ave.

Esther Glickstein went with Caroline to the movies every Tuesday night, which was dish night. It never failed that Esther would break her dish and Caroline had to give up her dish as a replacement – 1940's.

When Irving worked in the subway at night, Stanley would come down to the basement and call Caroline to come upstairs and raid the refrigerator. They ate so much that they had a bellyache afterwards – 289 Remsen Ave.

Love,

Caroline

Stories About My Grandfather Nathan Glickstein (Pop) by Joan Glickstein

Pop lived at a retirement home on Long Island called the King David Hotel. He was severely hard of hearing and relied on his hearing aid to know what was going on. One day, while Stan and I were visiting, I asked him how he knew when his hearing aid battery was low. With a twinkle in his eye he told me the following:

How do I know? That's easy. Every morning I open my eyes and it is light. That's good. Then I get up and look at the clock. It's still there, and that's good. Then I make sure it is wound up. Next I put on my hearing aid and hold it near the clock. If I hear the clock ticking I know my battery is good. If I don't hear, it has to be one of two things, either the battery is dead Or I am!

Another Pop story: this happened on Rosh Hashanah as told to me by his son Al Glickstein.

It was about two in the morning when Al Glickstein got a call from the King David hotel telling him that his father (Pop) had been rushed to the hospital emergency room. Al dressed hastily and drove to the hospital. Upon arriving he was told that his father had passed away and he needed to go to the morgue to identify the body. Heartsick, he made his way to the basement of the hospital and found his way to the morgue. There an attendant wheeled out a body and pulled down the white sheet.

Al stared open mouthed and wide eyed at the stranger on the gurney. "That's not my father" he shouted. "Where is he?"

The attendant shook his head. This is the only body brought down tonight.

Al left the hospital and flew down the parkway to the King David Hotel. "Where's my father?" he demanded.

"At the hospital" the bemused clerk replied.

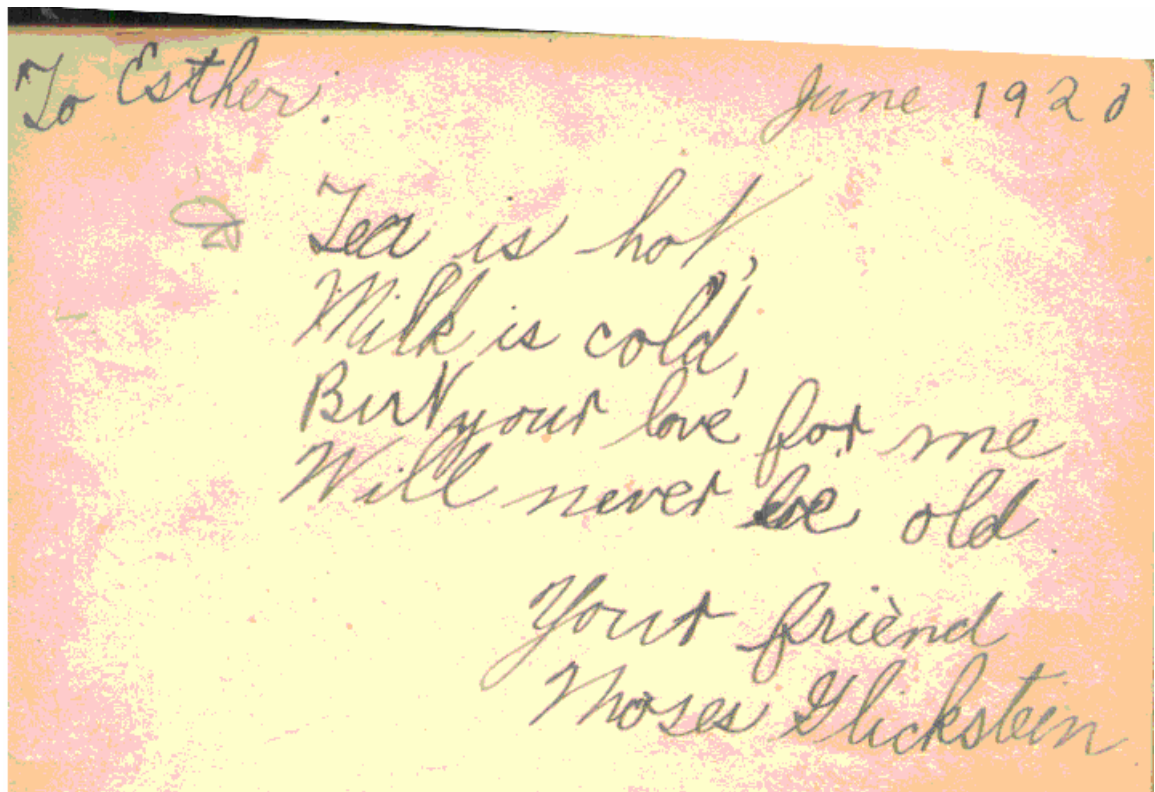

"He's not there" shouted Al.

The two men headed up to Pop's room and banged on the door. There was no answer. Al demanded that the clerk open the door. As soon as the door was opened and the light turned on, Pop sat up in bed.

Al overcame with joy at seeing his father alive and well fell on him with a tight bear hug. "What's wrong? Are you crazy? Why are you waking me up?" Pop demanded. Then he looked over at the empty bed next to him. "So what happened?"

As the story goes, the man in the next bed was not supposed to be in the room. It was a holiday. The hotel was full. The man had no place to go so Pop let him stay in his room even though he had a private room and was supposed to be alone. The clerk was upset, Al was furious, and Pop went back to bed.

A Road Well Traveled - Part II Preview

Introduction

The Bible speaks of recording names of family members. In Numbers 1: 2 it is written, “On the first day of the second month, in the second year following the exodus from the land of Egypt, the Lord spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the Tent of Meeting (Tabernacle) saying: take a census of the whole Israelite community by the clans of its ancestral houses, listing the names, every male, head by head. You and Aaron shall record them by their group, from the age of twenty years up, all those in Israel who are able to bear arms.” So began our family genealogy and I am happy and privileged to continue this task.

Part II of this book is comprised of family data that was collected over the past 45 years. This effort began one evening in about 1960. I was visiting my grandfather, Pop in his home on Remsen Avenue in Brooklyn, New York. I knew little about where he came from or his family and started asking him questions. The Barshefsky family tree began to blossom. The original data was scribbled into an old telephone address book since that was the only scratch paper around at that moment. Ten or twenty years later I started drawing a family tree on a large sheet of paper trying to decipher the information that was available at that time. I began inquiring about the shtetls my grandparents came from with little success. When computers arrived in the early 1980's, it was time to set up a formal database and I began inputting the little information I had.

When the computer program, Family Tree Maker arrived on the scene, displaying the data became lots of fun and I began in earnest the tedious task of collecting detailed data. Forms were sent to all my relatives whose addresses were known to me; it may have been somewhere around 75-100 persons. The response was very positive. Except for a few lone holdouts, everyone finally responded. The original data, recorded on paper are kept in a filing cabinet. The information requested included birth dates, marriage dates, places of birth, medical history, likes, dislikes etc. Almost everything given to me was typed into the Family Tree Maker program. At various family functions I made an effort to take head shots of my relatives. The pictures were scanned into the computer, cropped and included in the personal file with his/her other data. Many family members have sent me photographs that have been included.

Part II of this book displays in various formats much of the information that has been recorded in the computer file. The data includes information from the family tree of my mother's father, Harry Lenchitz, my mother's mother, Bertha Hofrichter, and my father's father, Sender Barshefsky. I have no information at all about the family of my father's mother, Celia Blumenstein. She died when my father was a young boy. My dad never talked about his birth mother and I am completely ignorant about that side of the family.

There are currently 1134 individuals listed in the “Glickstein” file with 305 different surnames and 245 marriages. The total number of generations is 16. The earliest birth date is about 1525. The following sections of Part II are just a sampling of the various formats that can be displayed from the database contained in the computer program Family Tree Maker.

The following three sections display descendant trees from the Lenchitz. Barshefsky/Glickstein and Parness families. The reminder of Part II is being compiled and will be available in the future.

The reader is urged to peruse these pages and enjoy, just as I have been doing for almost a half century. Have fun!
